THE FUTURE OF WRESTLING

Well, another year of wrestling action is almost complete. Time really flies, doesn't it? Anyway, it's time once again to look into the old crystal ball to see what the future holds for all your favorite superstars of the ring.

Lex Luger, Sting and The Ultimate Warrior are the wrestlers who will carry the sport in to the 21st century. It's going to be the year of body and all those wrestlers with great physiques are really going to strike it big. Look for all the out of shape guys to fade from the limelight. America is currently enjoying a fitness craze and fans won't want to look at old, fat men.

Wrestling's popularity will remain stable. New fans will join old ones in enjoying America's favorite pastime. Good will continue to reign supreme over bad and fans will want to see some quality wrestling, along with slick gimmickry. Yes, there won't be that many major changes in the sport as we know it, but then again, would we really want there to be?!

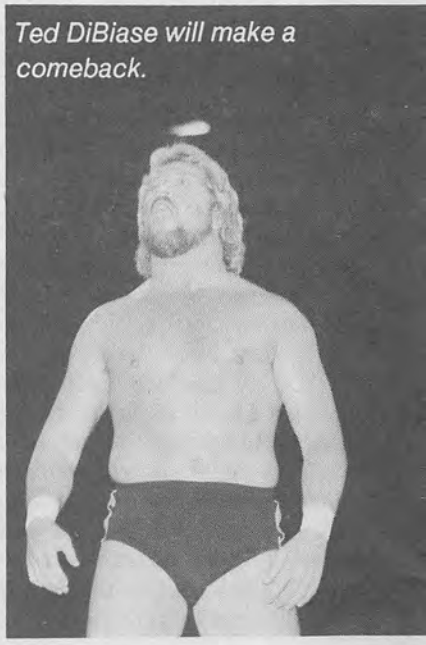
WRESTLING EYE'S PREDICTIONS FOR 1991



Ted DiBiase will make a comeback.

Nikolai Volkoff will make a splash in 1991

The wrestling world sure can be one wild and wacky place. 1990 saw many changes, some good and some not so good. Hulk Hogan and Ric Flair lost their titles, painted faces were all the rage and the independents made a sweeping comeback. Maybe the reason for that is the lack of action that the major federations failed to give. 1991 will soon be upon us and with it we'll have to say goodbye to old favorites and start rooting for some new ones. Without further ado, here are WRESTLING EYE's official predictions for the coming year:

Three names to watch in the world of wrestling are Scott Steiner, Lex Luger and Scotty The Body. Scott will break away from his brother (probably not on bad terms) to pursue a very lucrative singles career. After all, this move seems only natural for Steiner. Scott has a great body and can wrestle better than any young star competing today. Look for Scott Steiner's star to really rise in 1991. Lex Luger on the other hand will change his ways very early in '91 and will feud with N.W.A. champ, Sting. That is, if Sting still stays as champ. It's a good bet that Ric Flair will take his title back sometime in 1991. After all, Flair can't be without a title for too long because he really is the best wrestler in the NWA. However, if for some strange reason Flair doesn't take the title then Lex will wear the gold before the end of 1991. Scotty the Body will most definitely debut for a major promotion, whether it be the NWA or WWF. Scotty will make a name for himself and become one of the most controversial and talked about people in the world of wrestling. Yes, remember Scotty's name, you'll be hearing a lot of in the coming year. The old time wrestlers who are currently wreaking havoc in NWA wrestling rings will take a back seat to newer and younger talent. Paul Orndorff and Junkyard Dog will be relegated to mid card status and will probably fade from the limelight by the end of '91.

Now, let's take at look at the specific promotions:

WWF - The WWF will promote just as many shows as last year with average success, and will promote Pay-Per-View shows with the same success as the year previous. The WWF will outshine the NWA once again, and reign as the greatest and most powerful promotion in the world. The WWF will look to promote many shows in the Orient and Vince

Look for The Rockers in the NWA.

Roddy Piper will not see much ring action.

The women want more ring time.

McMahon and Japanese promoters will get together to host another Wrestling Summit.In fact, Japanese wrestlers will be seen a lot on WWF cards as talent will be interchanged on a regular basis. Look for more faces from the NWA to make appearances in the WWF. Vince is still raiding talent there and hopes to sign Sting and Lex Luger. The wrestling here will remain quite gimmicky and outrageousness will become the norm. Look for flashier costumes and a resurgence of a rock 'n wrestling type connection. A wrestler who is a rapper will make an appearance here in 1991 to further cement that trend. There will be no new titles added to the WWF rosters. Although fans have been clamoring for more belts, there just won't be any this year. Who knows, maybe things will be different in 1992. Hulk Hogan will regain the belt and will then lose it again. After all, the Hulkster isn't getting any younger and he's interested in pursuing other other avenues of his career. However, he'll be around, so don't worry all you Hulkamaniacs. The four major stars of the WWF will be Hulk Hogan, The Ultimate Warrior, Kerry Von Erich and Sgt. Slaughter. Randy Savage may also drop his "King" gimmick and will become a serious contender for the gold. Sensational Sherri will have to find a new man to manage when Savage drops her and she may end up teaming with none other than Dusty Rhodes! Those two would really make quite a pair. Roddy Piper will return after a hiatus. His television series TAG TEAM, with Jesse Ventura will be quite a hit, but Roddy will be back doing commentary and some occasional wrestling for Titan.Jesse Ventura, on the other hand, will keep a real low profile in '91 and will confine his activities to non wrestling events, like football play by play and commercials.

The Rockers, Shawn Michaels and Marty Jannetty will be phased out of the WWF entirely and will go to the NWA. It'll be a good move because the fans will really appreciate their skills there. The Legion of Doom will wear the tag team belts for most of 1991, but Demolition will be hot on their trail and there will be some great match ups. Improved wrestlers of '91 will be Paul Roma, Tugboat Thomas and The Barbarian. Ted DiBiase will get much more of a push and he'll be involved in a major feud that will push him back into the limelight.

NWA - Ted Turner is looking to sell his interest in the NWA but there will be no takers. The NWA will make a concerted effort to provide the fans with top notch wrestling wrestling but they won't put a dent in the WWF markets. They will continue to target the Southern half of the country, as they have for almost half a century. The attendance at the live shows will remain mediocre but their television product will be regarded as the best in the business. In fact, technically the NWA show currently rivals that of the high tech WWF, but McMahon will have no cause for worry. The wrestling will concentrate on skill and gimmicks. By doing this, the NWA hopes to attract the hard-core fan who really want to see a match, not a circus-like show. Yeah, forget seeing any cartoons here. But, sadly the NWA will not set any new standards. Fans will still watch the WWF shows in record numbers.

The four major stars in the NWA will most definitely be, Sting, Lex Luger, Scott Steiner and sadly enough El Gigante. Look for Luger/Sting battles to dominate a major portion of 1991 (if neither jumps ship to the WWF). After a while, these matches will lose their appeal and fans will start to view them as tedious.

If Ric Flair doesn't take the title back in early 1991, look for the Nature Boy to retire from the N.W.A. in mid 1991. If this is the case, Flair will almost disappear from wrestling much like Bob Backlund did. Flair may drift into doing television commentary for the NWA before leaving completely. Rick Steiner will make an attempt to go out alone after after his brother leaves him in the dust, but he'll never make it and fans will quickly forget the amiable wrestler. Steve Williams will be putting more time in '91. Tommy Rich. Mark Callas and Norman will get big pushes in the coming year. The Freebirds and The Midnight Express will engage in a bitter feud that will keep fans buzzing. Look for something drastic to happen to Michael Hayes' looks as a direct result from this. Some lesser known WWF talent may show up in NWA rings, but no major star will make the jump. Look for an infusion of younger talent coming in to replace the older wrestlers as the NWA desperately tries to keep their fans happy.

Sting will enjoy the limelight.

Is it all over for Flair?.

The Four Horsemen will disband and will not reform this year. No one will miss them. All in all, the NWA will draw new fans but will not pose any threat to the WWF.

INDEPENDENTS - The future of the independents looks quite promising. They will enjoy much more success and will become much more popular and secure their own territories just like it was five years ago. The independents will continue to feature women's wrestling because sadly the bigger promotions will not bring the women back to their rings. Look for a lot of wrestlers to be released from the WWF and NWA and watch them show up in independent rings all across the country. In fact, there will really be top notch cards presented and the action will truly be intense. The independents will also gain much more exposure in 1991 with major television contracts etc. Expect a lot of great things for the independent organizations in the future.

Names like Cactus Jack, Larry Winters and D.C Drake will become heard throughout independent rings everywhere and there will be bloody and violent feuds, the likes of which will not be seen in the majors. If real hard-hitting wrestling action is what you're looking for, look no further than your local independent promotion.

1991 promises to be the year of toning and refining. Most things in 1991 will remain unchanged and stable as each promotion strives to perfect their individual product. The major promotions will survive quite nicely and there will a thrust of more success for the independents. Many new faces will make their debuts and we'll hear of ring retirements, but you can count on one thing; WRESTLING EYE will be here to deliver all the action to you in a forthright and honest manner. That's one prediction you can take to the bank!

WAR PAINT!

THE ULTIMATE CHALLENGERS FOR THE WWF GOLD

Since scoring the biggest upset in wrestling history by winning the WWF World title from Hulk Hogan, the Ultimate Warrior has had little trouble defending the belt. And yet, some wrestling insiders claim that the Warrior's crown is beginning to wobble. Perhaps the crown is slipping on greasepaint, perhaps these insiders just don't like the Warrior, but whatever their reason, they believe that the Warrior will soon face the biggest challenges of his career. Recently, these Warrior critics held a secret meeting.

At the meeting, they compiled a list of the wrestlers they believe have a chance of defeating the Warrior for the gold. WRESTLING EYE has managed to secure a copy of that list and there are many surprises on it. It includes the Warrior bashers' opinions about why the listed wrestlers will give the Warrior his ultimate challenges. It should be stressed that these are not the opinions of WRESTLING EYE or its staff, but rather of a group of WWF insiders who believe the Warrior's title reign may be a short one.

Hulk Hogan will defeat the Warrior the first time he gets the chance. That Slaughter is a formidable contender.

Randy Savage could the one to stop the Warrior. (photo by Schultz) chance will probably come at Wrestlemania VII, scheduled to be held in the Los Angeles Coliseum. The only thing that can stop Hogan from regaining the title is himself. Hogan may not want to regain the title badly enough to defeat the Warrior. His motivation may be gone. There are rumors that the Hulkster no longer wants the burden of defending the championship. He hates the rigorous travel schedule a champion must maintain. These rumors also claim that the Hulkster now prefers to wrestle only once or twice a week. The rest of the time he wants to spend with his family and making movies. Still it is entirely possible that when the bell sounds and the title is on the line, Hulk Hogan will respond to the challenge.

HAWK AND ANIMAL

The Ultimate Warrior will soon face a serious challenge from both Hawk and Animal, newly arrived in the WWF as the Legion of Doom. The current alliance between the three face painted heroes is doomed. History teaches us that the Legion of Doom cannot be trusted. In the past, Hawk and Animal have turned against Sting, Dusty Rhodes and Paul Ellering. The Ultimate Warrior will be their next victim. And when that comes to pass, either of the former Road Warriors have enough skill and experience to win the WWF gold,

SID VICIOUS

Sure, Sid Vicious seems entrenched in the NWA as a member of the Four Horsemen, but many experts think Big Sid will be the next wrestler Vince signs away from the NWA. They believe that it will be Vicious who eventually replaces Hogan as the WWF's top attraction. Vicious has the look and charisma a WWF champion needs. When his ring skills develop, he will be as unbeatable as Hogan once was. This match, however, may not take place until sometime in 1991.

BOB BACKLUND

Bob Backlund? "Impossible!" scream most experts. "Bobby Backlund is virtually retired. The only wrestling he has done during the last few years is in Japan." However, these experts have not heard the rumors circulating throughout WWF headquarters. Some staff members have seen Backlund in the offices of both Vince McMahon and Pat Patterson. There are reports that Backlund has begun a rigorous training schedule. Japanese contacts report that there are several Japanese promoters, particularly Shohei Baba, who are very interested in staging a Warrior/Backlund title match. Consequently, a return by Backlund is not as far-fetched as it was only a few months ago. Backlund believes he can defeat the Warrior. He is not alone in that opinion.

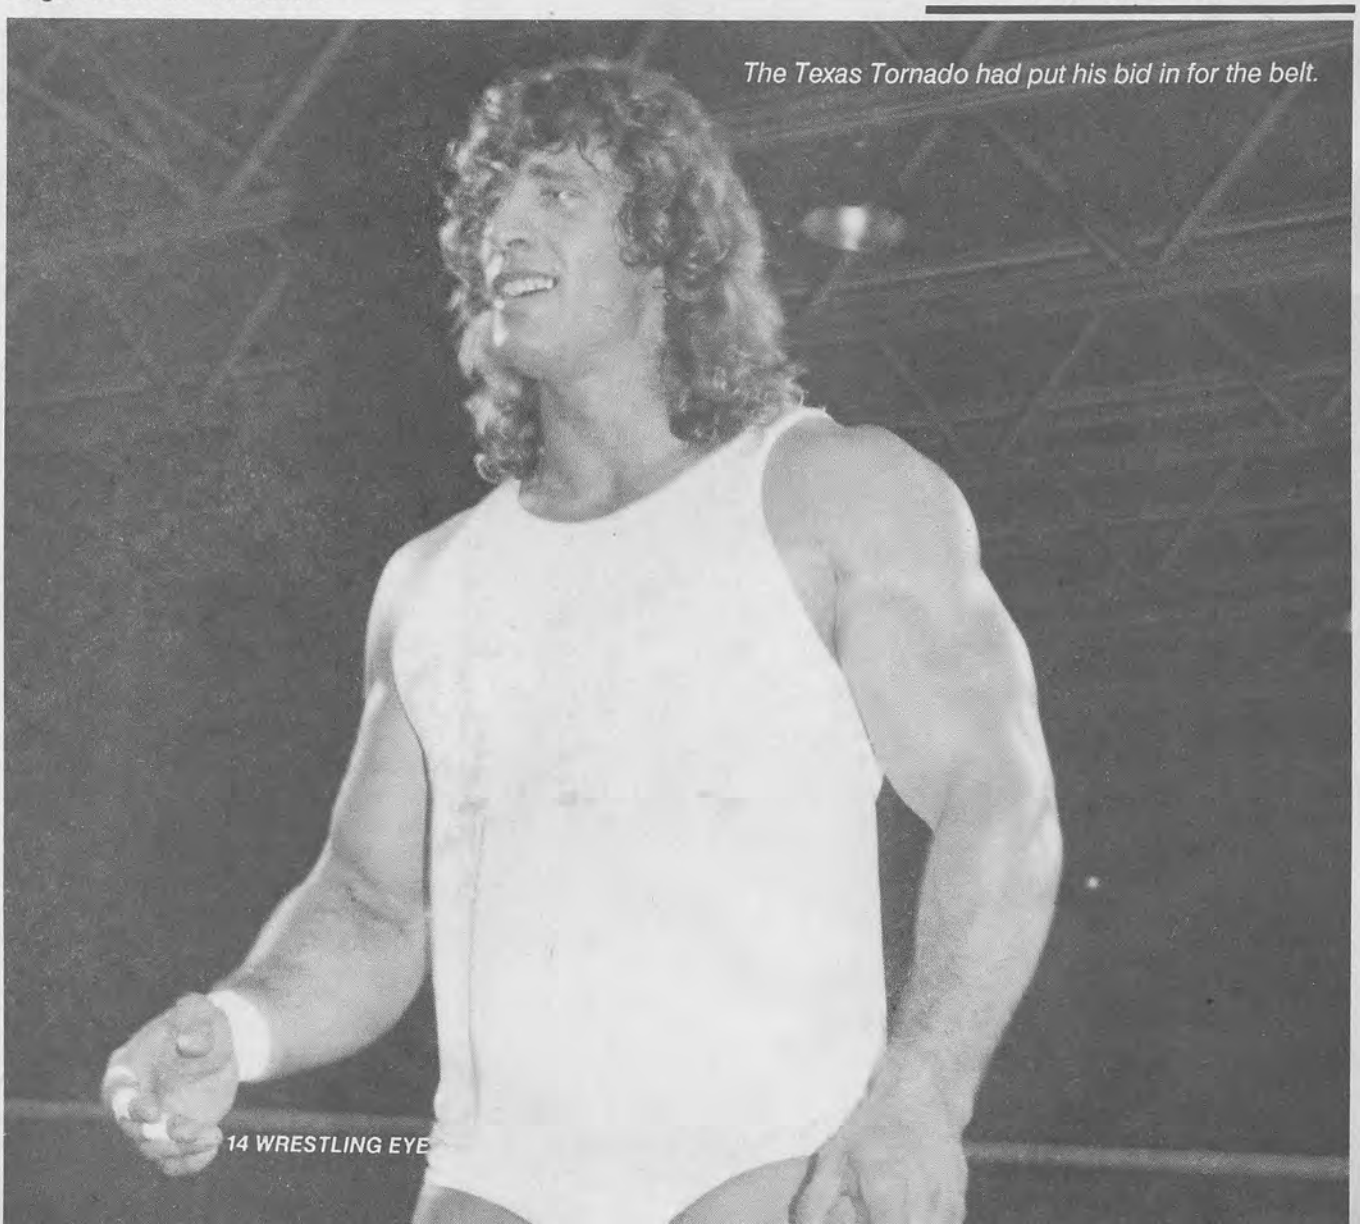
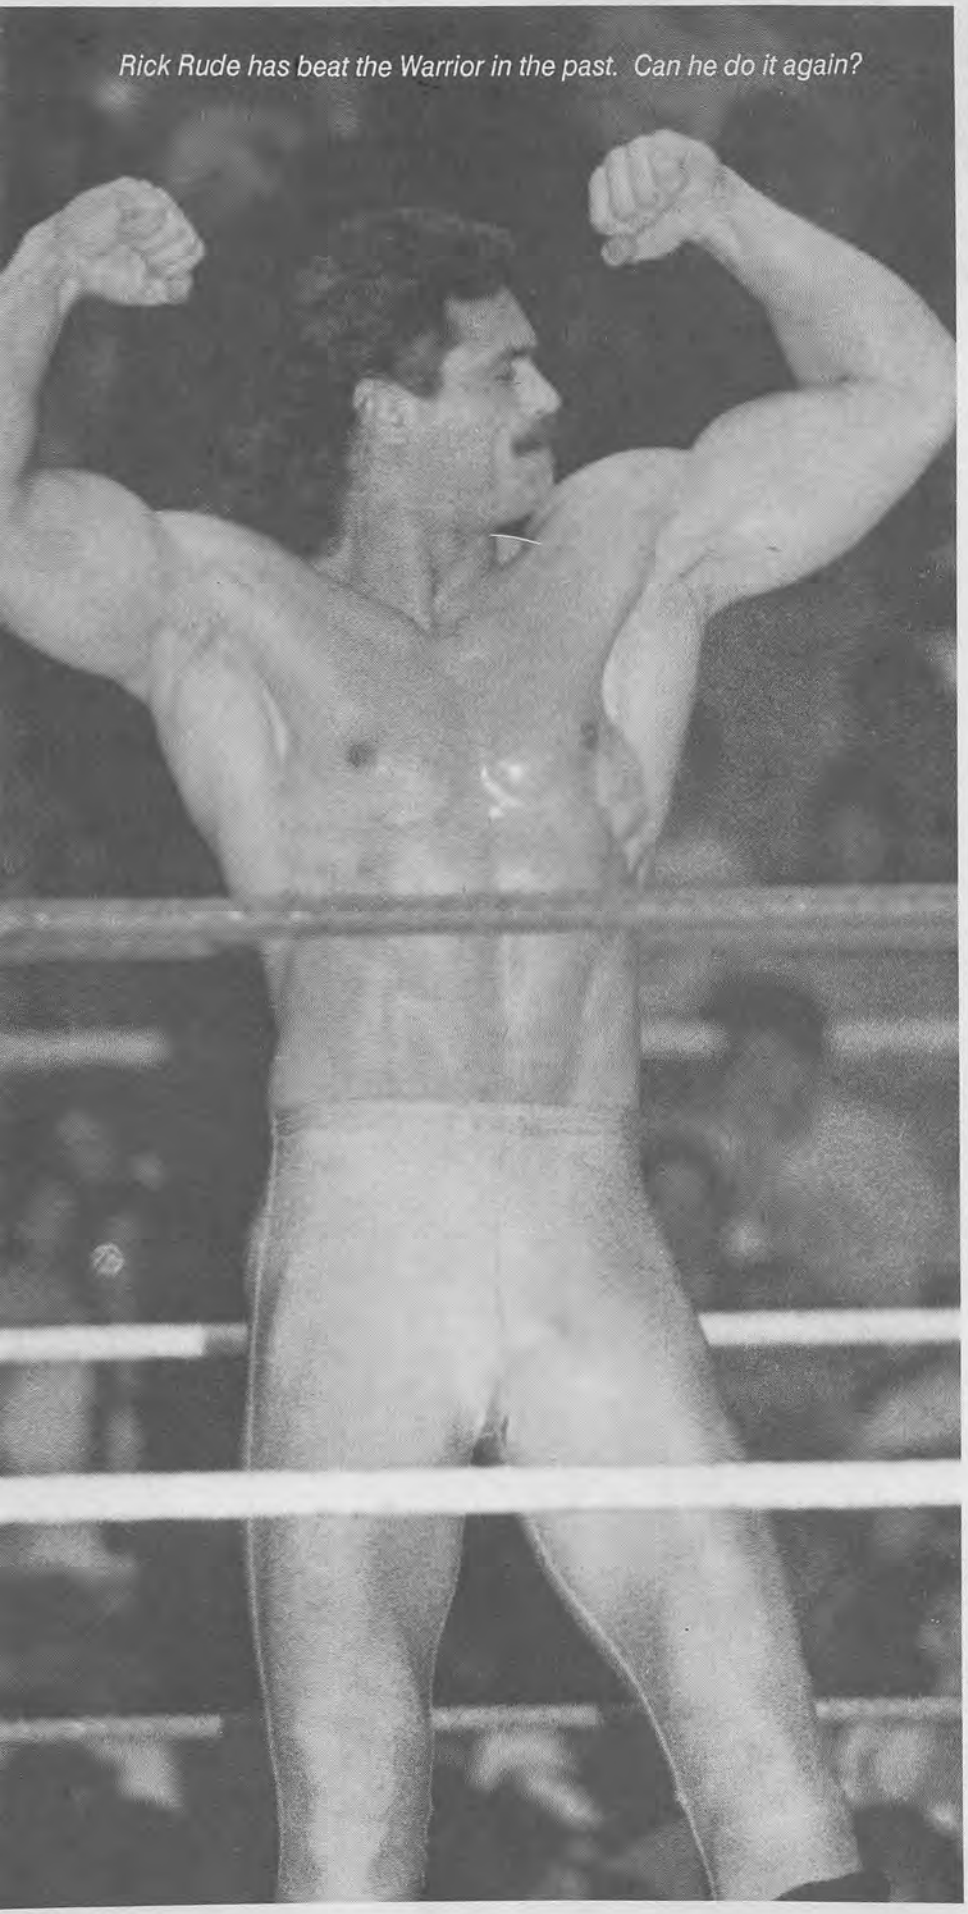
SERGEANT SLAUGHTER

Rumors are rampant in wrestling circles that Sergeant Slaughter will soon challenge the Ultimate Warrior. It seems that Slaughter does not think the Ultimate Warrior presents a good role model for the children of America. In fact, the Sarge believes that the Warrior represents all the things that are wrong with today's heroes. Slaughter claims the Warrior's hair makes him look like a woman and his face-paint belongs on a clown, not on a professional athlete. The Sarge is really ticked off. In fact, he may be angry enough to give the Warrior the worst beating of his career.



The Texas Tornado had put his bid in for the belt.



Rick Rude has beat the Warrior in the past. Can he do it again?

RANDY SAVAGE

A time of rebirth is coming for the Macho Man. He has long been the most competent technical wrestler in the WWF. As soon as he abandons his silly "Macho King" persona and dumps Scary Sherri, the real Randy Savage will return to the WWF. And he will return with vengeance in his heart and the world title on his mind. Savage has held the title and he knows all about the stresses and hardships a champion must endure. He knows too the toll they can take on a champion's psyche. Savage has the knowledge to capitalizé on them when they start taking their toll on the Warrior.

RICK RUDE

Admittedly, this is a long shot. Rude has already lost many times to the Warrior in arenas across America. However, Rude remains the only wrestler in the WWF, besides Kerry Von Erich, who holds a pinfall victory over the Warrior. And there is something positive in all those losses. After each match with the Warrior, Rude is increasing his knowledge of the Warrior' s weaknesses. At the same time, Rude is following a savage training schedule that is said to be dramatically increasing his endurance and strength. Rude may indeed, in time, become as strong as the Warrior. He already possesses more endurance and ring skill. There is a chance that Rude may upset the Warrior. Especially if the Warrior grows overconfident when he sees Rude in the opposite corner.

KERRY VON ERICH

Kerry is new to the WWF and some experts wonder how long he will remain in Vinceland. He has a history of unreliability and failing to fulfill commitments. However, if he does remain, he may provide the Warrior with a serious challenge. Von Erich holds numerous pinfall victories over the Warrior. They occurred a few years ago in Texas when the Warrior was known as the Dingo Warrior. At the time, the Warrior was hated by the fans and Von Erich was the Lone Star state's version of Hulk Hogan. The stumbling block to this matchup is that at this time, both wrestlers are competing as fan favorites. In fact, they occasionally team together. If that changes, if the Warrior turns to the dark side, or if Kerry decides the chance to again hold the world title of a major promotion outweighs hearing the cheers of the fans, a new WWF champion could be crowned.

THE LEGION OF DOOM VS. DEMOLITION

BY STEVE MUELLER

The fans in the front row at Madison Square Garden were rather confused. "Hey, ain't that the Road Warriors?" said Pinky while reloading her camera. "Why is Vince calling them the "Legion of Doom"? The Legion of Doom was in Superman comics. You know, those guys who hated Superman. I think it was Lex Luthor, Brainiac and Bizarro who banded together in the name of lies, injustice and the un-American way. These guys are the Road Warriors." "I'm not sure they are," said Lunky. "Remember when we thought the Powers of Pain were the Road Warriors? McMahon fooled us then. I'm not sure that's really Animal and Hawk."

"Are you guys dumb or what," snarled Musclehead Palermo from his seat behind the happy wrestling couple. "Even in the NWA they called the Road Warriors the "Legion of Doom". Paul Ellering gave them that name. What I want to know is where is Ellering and who is the third guy coming to the ring with Demolition?"
"That's Demolition's new member" said Pinky. "They call him Crush. The way it works now is that any two members Demolition can defend the tag team belts."

"That's nuts" said Lunky. "Is that why we're supposed to boo Demolition now? I don't understand. Just when did they become bad guys again?"

"No one knows," said Musclehead. "I heard they became bad guys again because they insulted Gene Okerlund during an interview. Actually, I think that should make them even bigger heroes. Okerlund annoys me."

"Ah, everyone annoys you," said Lunky. "What I want to know is what's going on here. Road Warriors who aren't the Road Warriors. Three members of Demolition? This is crazy."

"Wait a minute" yells Pinky. "Here comes the Ultimate Warrior. He' s on the side of the Legion of Doom. Anybody see Sting? He's the only wrestler who wears war paint that isn't here."

Animal is a tough guy to mess with.

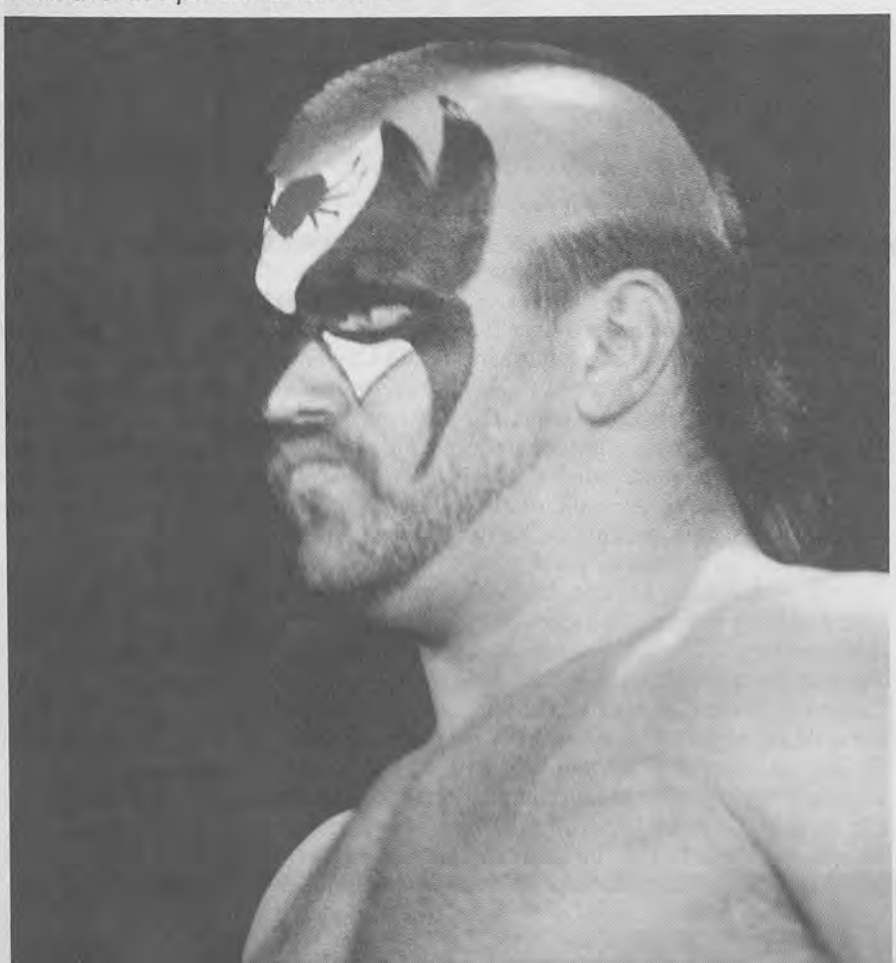
Animal's face paint is awesome.



"What about Kamala?" laughs Lunky. "Anybody see him? You know what Vince should have done? He should have called Animal and Hawk the New Powers of Pain. That would have really confused everybody."

Actually, WWF fans are confused enough by recent developments in the promotion that some are calling the Weird Wrestling Federation. Strange things are happening in Vinceland. So strange that fans half-expect to hear the old Twilight Zone theme song blaring out of arena public address systems. "Doodle-Doodle, Doodle-Doodle, Doodle-Doodle." Wait a minute! There, stepping out of the shadows under the archway in front of the dressing rooms. It's the ghost of Rod Serling. "Presented for your consideration. A tag team that was once considered the best in the sport. Now they enter a strange new world where their opponents all look like them. There's the signpost up ahead. Next stop, The World Wrestling Federation."

As Rod's ghost steps back into the shadows, perhaps we should try to figure out exactly what is going on in the WWF. This war paint chronicle begins in June, 1990. Vince McMahon, for a variety of complicated reasons, managed to steal the Road Warriors from the NWA. Actually, it wasn't really a steal. The new NWA booking regime, headed by Ole Anderson, was glad to get rid of the Warriors. The NWA no longer considered them a major drawing card and they were earning a great deal of money, almost $5,100 a appearance. Consequently, the NWA released the Road Warriors from their contract.

Vince, however, feared that fans would confuse the Road Warrior name with that of the Ultimate Warrior. Why he feared this is not quite clear, but he decided not to use the Road Warrior name. However, it is also not quite clear, if he was so worried about name confusion, why did he pair the three war painted heroes in six-man tag matches. WWF insiders claim Pat Patterson, the WWF's chief booker, differed on the name question and wanted to call the three member team the Ultimate Road Warriors, but Vince quickly vetoed the idea. It should be noted that since dying his hair a subtle shade of dirty blond, the Ultimate Warrior is wearing far less face paint. That must mean something, but what is not yet clear.

For a time, it was rumored that Vince

did not want Animal and Hawk to have weird punker haircuts. Insiders claim that he feared more confusion. He worried that the fans would confuse Animal and Hawk with "the Powers of Pain", a team that no longer exists and which was originally brought into the WWF because of their amazing resemblance to the Road Warriors, who now also no longer exist. At least not as the Road Warriors. Oh, yes, if you're not following this, better start paying attention. There will be a pop quiz.

Suffice it to say that in Vinceland, Animal and Hawk have weird punker haircuts and face paint, and are heroes who will be known as the Legion of Doom. Unfortunately, the situation involving their initial WWF opponents, Demolition, is just as confusing. Until June of 1990, Demolition were wildly cheered by WWF fans. At least, they have been cheered since the memorable double turn match in late 1988 when they fired their manager, Mr. Fuji, during a match against the Powers of Pain who were heroes at the time. As has been chronicled elsewhere at length, as a result of that match, the Powers became bad guys and the Demo's became good guys. Somehow, however, in June, Demolition suddenly became bad guys. Why and how they did is not entirely clear. As was mentioned by Musclehead Palermo earlier in this chronicle, Demolition insulted Gene Okerlund during an interview by calling him Howard. Perhaps Demo was comparing him to Howard Cosell, perhaps Howard the Duck.The exact reference was not made clear. Anyway, Okerlund was so upset, he called his longtime friends, Animal and Hawk, to defend his honor. You see, both Okerlund and the former Road Warriors grew up in Minnesota. But wait you say, the Road Warriors have always been billed as hailing from Chicago. How could they have grown up in Minnesota? Good question. Ask Vince. Anyway, about this time something else weird happened.

During a routine physical, Demolition's Ax was diagnosed as having a heart valve problem. It was feared that his wrestling career was over. To fill his place, Vince hired Brian Adams, who had been competing in the Oregon area for Don Owen Promotions, to be Crush. However, subsequent medical examinations revealed that Ax's problems were not as serious as first thought. So plans were changed. It was decided that Demolition would function as a three man team. However, until he recovers fully, Ax will be more a manager than a wrestler. And as everyone knows, a team with a manager cannot be heroes unless they are the Road Warriors or are playing baseball.

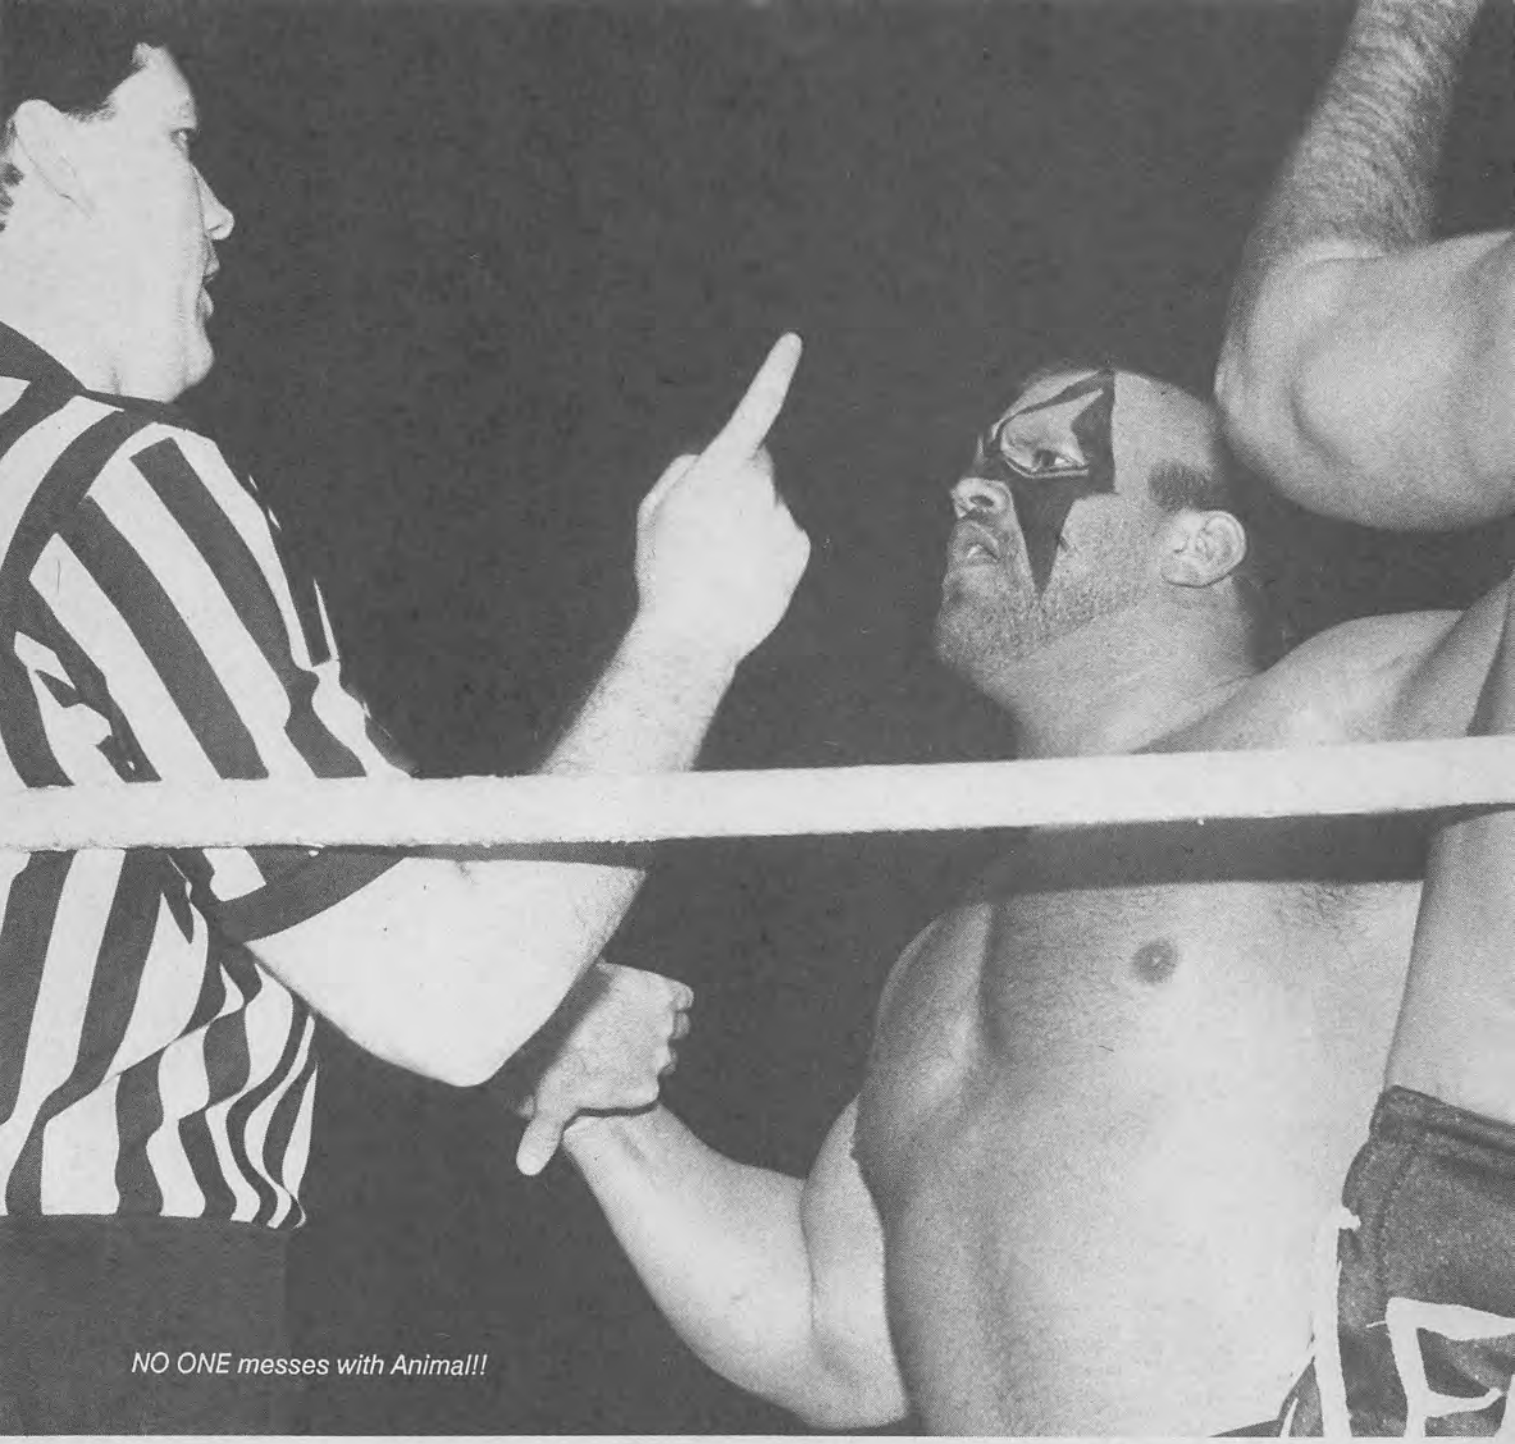
How the Ultimate Warrior got involved in this new battle of the greasepaint is also not entirely clear. In fact, not many fans really care how he became involved. That story will be left for another time.



NO ONE messes with Animal!!

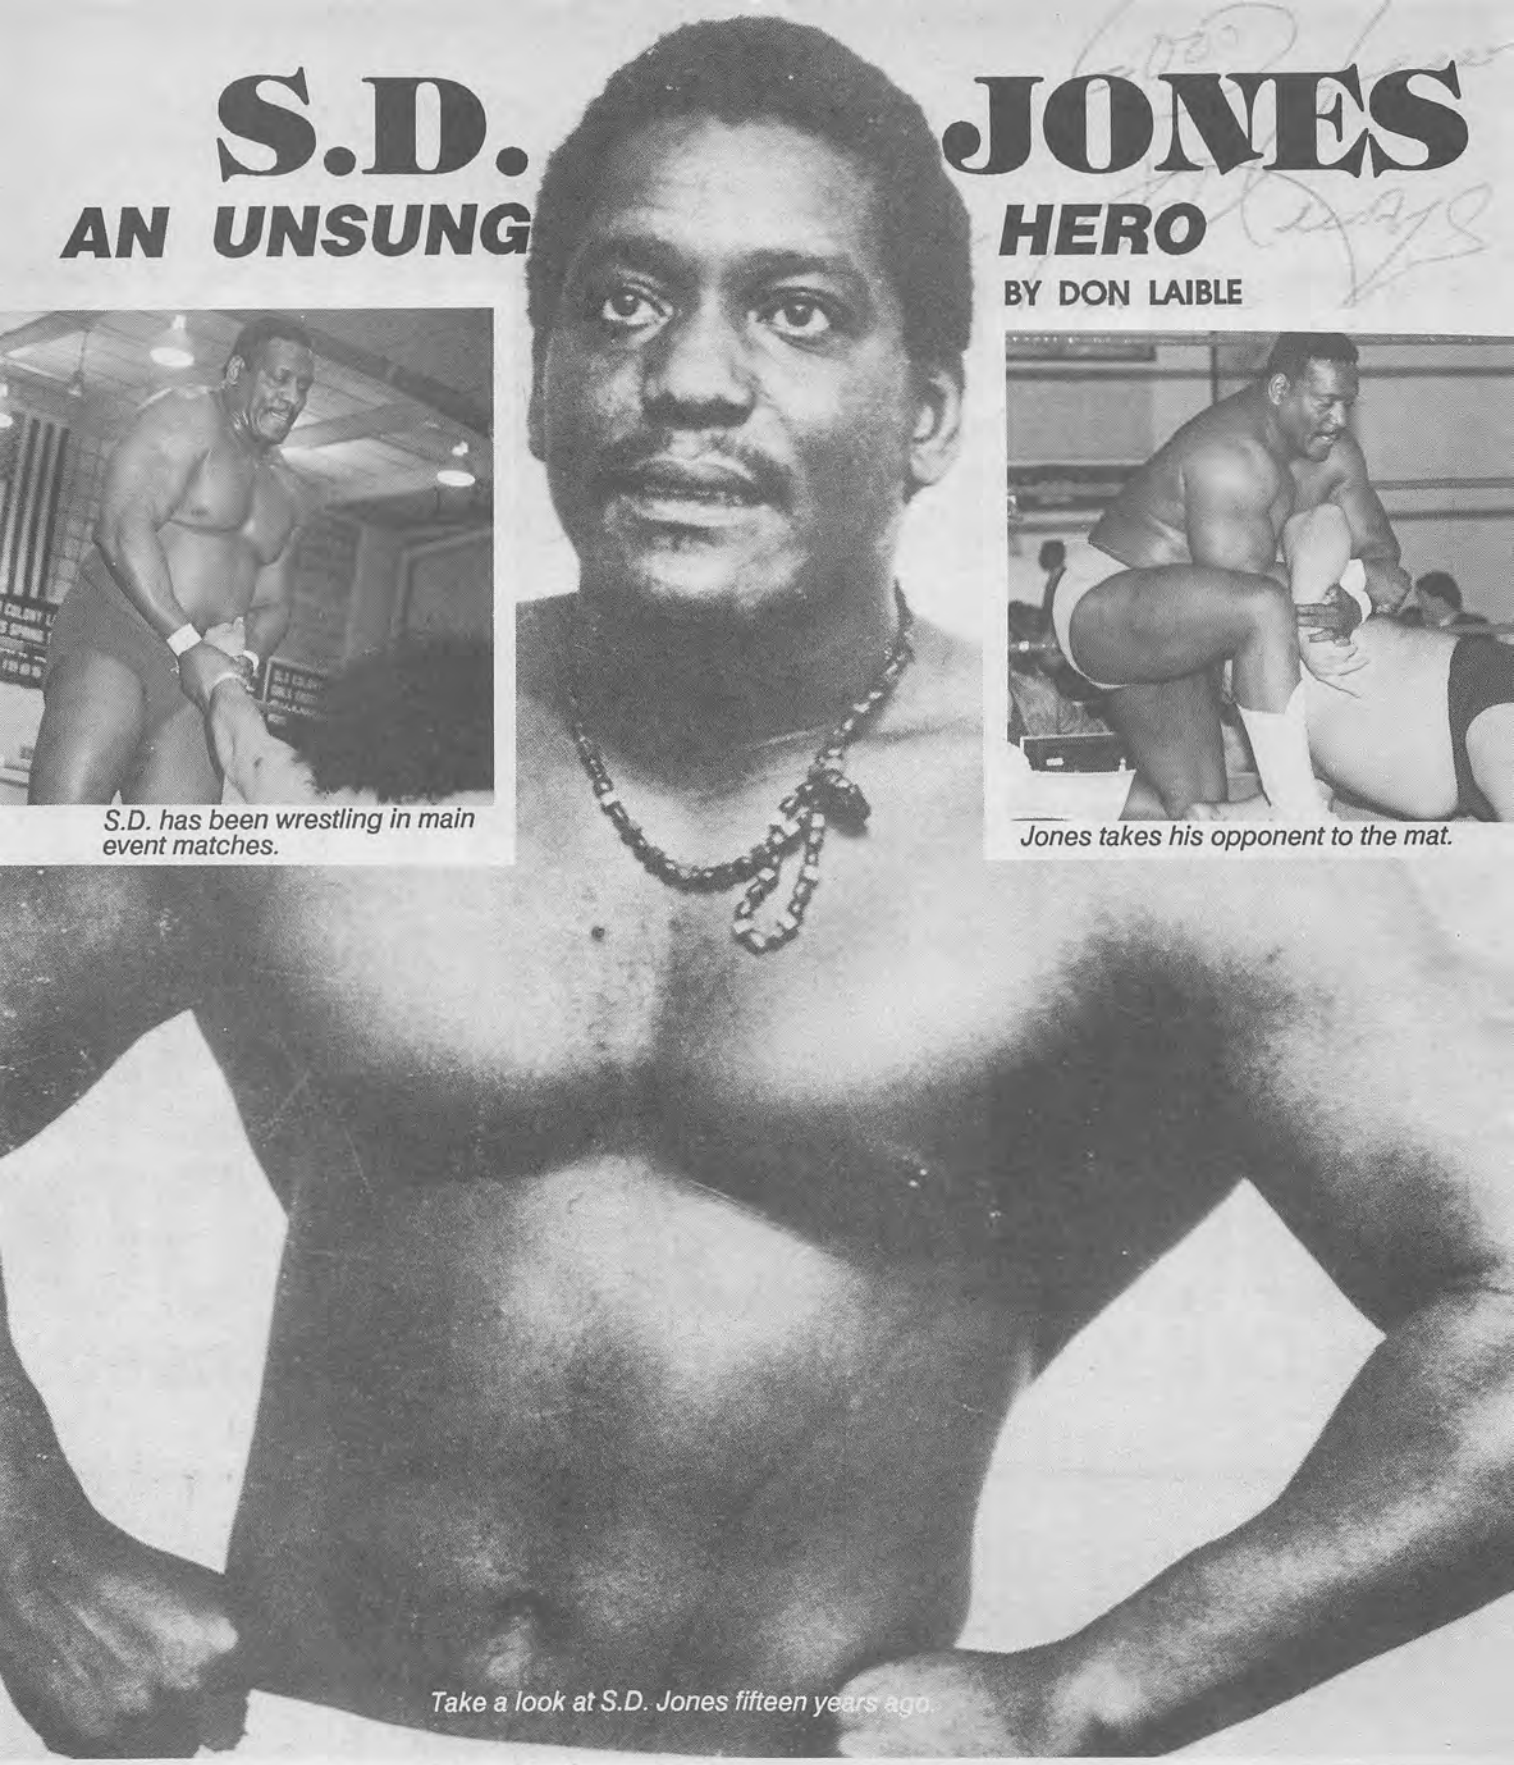
AN UNSUNG HERO

BY DON LAIBLE

S.D. has been wrestling in main event matches.

Jones takes his opponent to the mat.



Take a look at S.D. Jones fifteen years ago.

A dedicated professional wrestler is always competing, not only against others, but against themselves as well. A person with no specific goal just doesn't have the same incentive as one who does. S.D. Jones knows precisely what he wants and he has the route already mapped out to stardom. He is undisputedly ranked among the best of the independents along the East Coast, yet he is still battling for that all elusive gold. While S.D. does occasionally wrestle for the WWF, he is currently seeing action in the independents where he knows his chances of gaining a title are very possible. Jones has become a more patient and selective wrestler, but he'll never settle for second place. Special Delivery Jones is vying for his place in the limelight and he won't rest until he gets it.

S.D. broke into wrestling seventeen years ago, yet his enthusiasm and determination have never wavered. Yes, Jones never won a world championship but his talents have always been in demand by promoters and fans alike. In fact, S.D. has moved around quite a bit in order to keep his fans satisfied. At one time, the Virgin Islands and Philadelphia, Pa were home, but today, S.D. resides in the Bronx, New York. But since S.D. has staked his claim for territorial titles in the East with the WWF and on the West Coast for the NWA,, he has become a household personality.

Those accomplishments are what have led Jones to what he calls his greatest professional freedom and satisfaction. Doors were immediately opened for him when he embarked on the independent trail. He is also quite comfortable there and he tries out new moves in order to perfect his craft. S.D. also likes the luxury of controlling his own booking schedule.

"Hey man, I feel great. Call me a born again wrestler. The East is where it's happening for me," Jones enthused. "The wrestling media focuses more attention here than anywhere else and it's where all my family and friends are. I don't need or want to conquer the whole wrestling world, this little piece is just fine for me," Jones said.

Jones is still a member in good standing with the WWF but he has trouble fitting WWF commitments into his busy schedule. Jones enjoys the flexibility of the independent circuit and shocked many mat fans recently when he thumbed his nose at the rulebook and conducted business in a more aggressive manner than most were used to. He turned on his tag team partner, "Pretty Boy" Larry Sharpe and Sharpe suffered at the hands of Chris Evans, and Heavy Metal Maniac as well as S.D. Jones.

Shortly after Jones displayed his new attitude, he arrived for a match in New Jersey along with his WWF buddies Don Muraco and Cowboy Bob Orton Jr. Many mat fans in the Tri-State area finger Jones' relationship with the dastardly duo as the reason for his current rulebreaking ways. One old friend who doesn't like S.D.'s change of heart is Chief Jules Strongbow. "We've been down the same road together for many years, driving, rooming and wrestling. S.D. is too smart of a man and far too well trained as an athlete to keep up these crazy ways in the ring. If it comes down to it, I'll step into the ring and beat some sense into him."

Promoter Greg Gifume has never been disappointed with SD.'s outing. "The name S.D. Jones still sells tickets. He always shows up in great physical condition and gives his best efforts in the ring. As far as I'm concerned, he's an uncrowned champion. During a match in Bridgeport, Connecticut, he and "Iron "Mike Sharpe brawled all over the building for fifteen minutes. They both took some pretty bad beatings. The only thing that probably saved them a trip to the hospital was when Sharpe threw the timekeeper's bell. He missed his target so the ref and some other wrestlers stepped in to break things up. It was really wild."

S.D. has received offers to appear in all territories. The Southeastern Professional Wrestling from Florida, the Canadian Maritimes and even Don Owens' Portland, Oregon promotion have all extended attractive offers but Jones has turned them all down. Jones is just too comfortable in his Eastern home to leave.

The turning point in S.D. Jones' career came in 1974 during a match against Killer Kowalski. At the time Kowalski was feuding with then World champion, Bruno Sammartino and agreed to give a "young punk " a workout. What a surprise Killer received. S.D. knew that this was a big opportunity and he made the best of the situation.

Kowalski had his mask turned around, thus blocking his vision. Jones drilled his fists and forearms against the ring veteran's body and finally knocked him off his feet with two headbutts. Killer was totally disoriented, and The Grand Wizard, Kowalski's manager was in a frenzy. But S.D. ended up beating himself on that memorable evening. As he charged his weary foe in the corner of the ring, Killer rolled out of the way and instead of colliding into his opponent, Jones crashed into the turnbuckles. As he landed on the canvas, Kowalski quickly locked Jones' shoulders on the mat for the pin.

At a time when most athletes begin to slow down and think of taking it easy, S.D. is still going strong and has no intentions of quitting. "My weight has pretty much stayed at about the same 250 pounds and I feel real good," he said. "The Cheetah Kid and D.C. Drake are two dudes that I want to tangle with real soon. They think they're real bad but they better think again. I'm gonna slap the mask off The Cheetah Kid's face and scratch off Drake's face paint in no time flat," Jones confidently boasted.

Whatever you think of his ring, S.D. Jones has been around wrestling far too long to have anyone tell him what to do. Exciting? Yes. Predictable? No. With several more productive years ahead of him, look for great things from Special Delivery Jones.

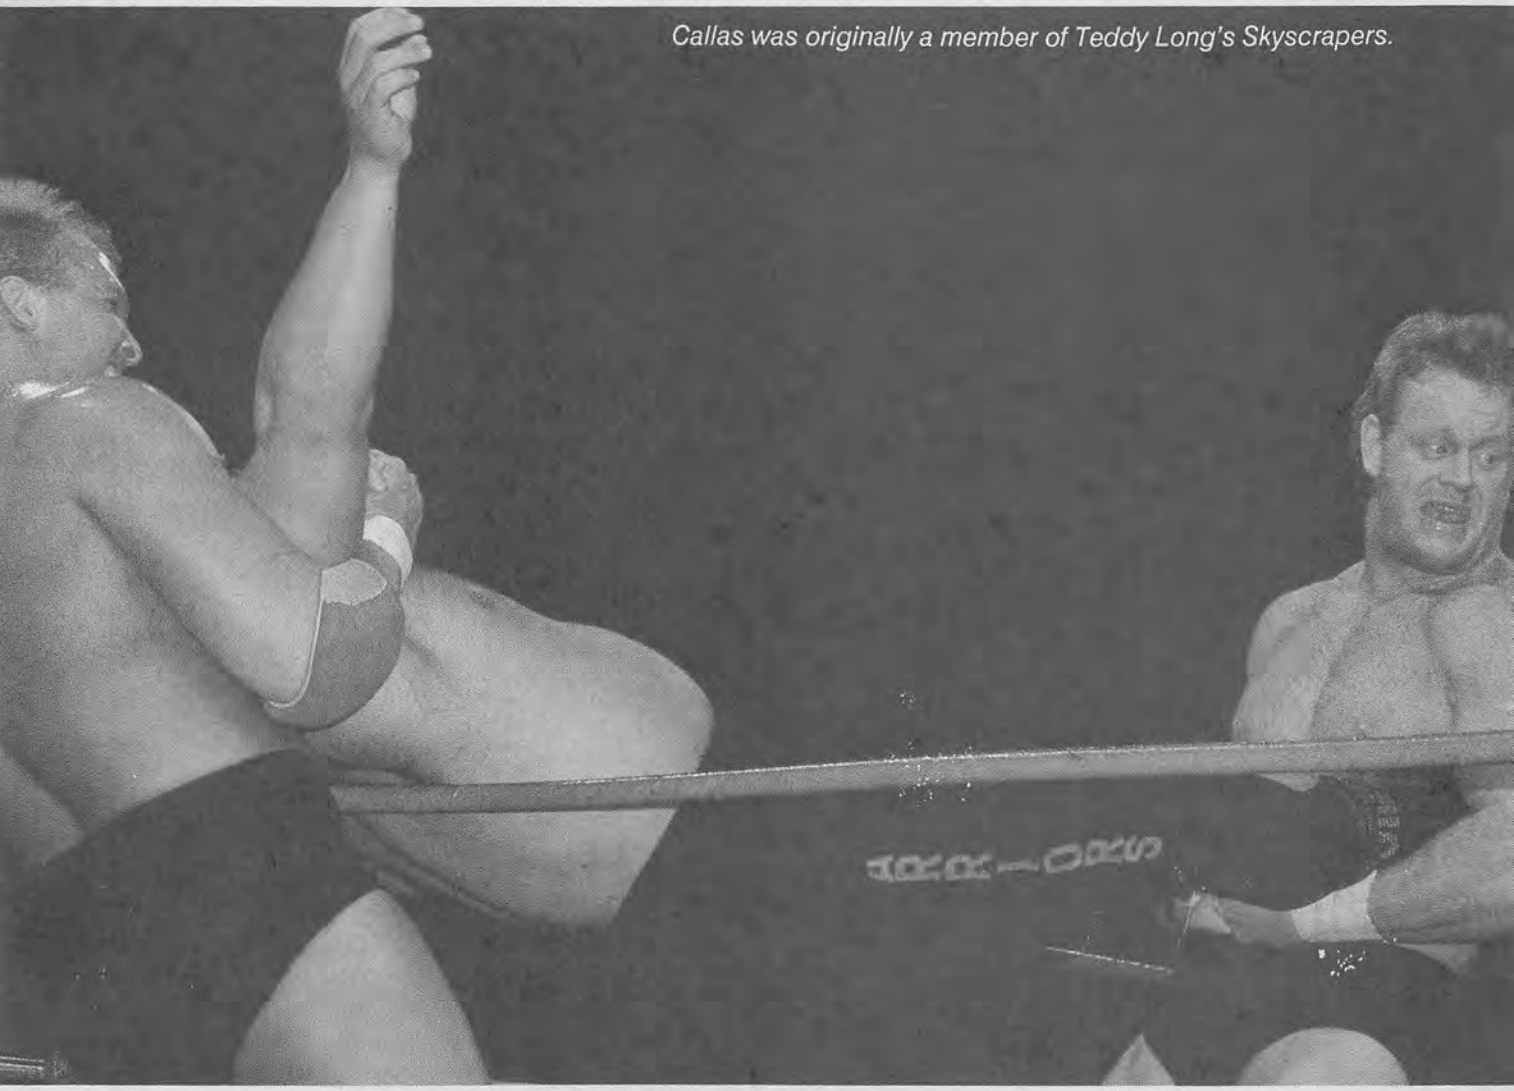
MARK CALLAS
A LEAN, MEAN FIGHTING MACHINE

BY STEVE MUELLER



Callas was originally a member of Teddy Long's Skyscrapers.

"This could be devastating" screamed NWA announcer Jim Ross as Mean Mark Callas climbed the ring post after battering another opponent senseless. "Mean Mark is going to leap.....wait a minute. He's stopping. No, I don't believe this. Callas is walking along the ring ropes like a tightrope walker."

Even veteran fans were stunned when they first saw Callas doing his high wire act. The only other wrestler in memory who performed that trick was the legendary Spoiler. Fittingly, it was the Spoiler who trained Callas for the professional ring. Callas first came to wrestling prominence in the CWA where he wrestled as the "Master of Pain" and won that promotion's version of the world title from Jerry Lawler. He had to leave the area when he lost a "Loser Leave Town" match to Dutch Mantel. (At the time, Mantel was wrestling as "Texas Dirt" because he had previously lost a "Loser Leave Town" match to Callas.) Mean Mark then journeyed to the USWA and appeared in Texas rings wearing a hood and calling himself the Punisher. Very quickly, he won the Texas title from Eric Embry. Mean Mark made his NWA debut in January of 1990, taking a spot in the promotion that opened when Sid Vicious suffered a collapsed lung.

"What's he gonna do now?" yelled Jim Ross as Callas neared the center of the rope. "What amazing balance for such a big man! Now he's leaping high into the air. Look at the lift he's getting! His elbow is landing like a truck falling off a cliff."

Callas wasn't finished. He lifted his battered opponent off the mat and delivered a devastating heart punch, a move not seen in wrestling since the long gone days of Stan Stasiak and Ox Baker. At ringside, Paul E. Dangerously, Mean Mark's new manager, laughed giddily and waved his portable telephone overhead like Roddy Piper brandishing a coconut. Many NWA insiders attribute Mean Mark's rapid rise to stardom to his new alliance with Dangerously. When Callas replaced the injured Sid Vicious in Teddy Long's giant tag team,

Mark Callas has a one way ticket to stardom.

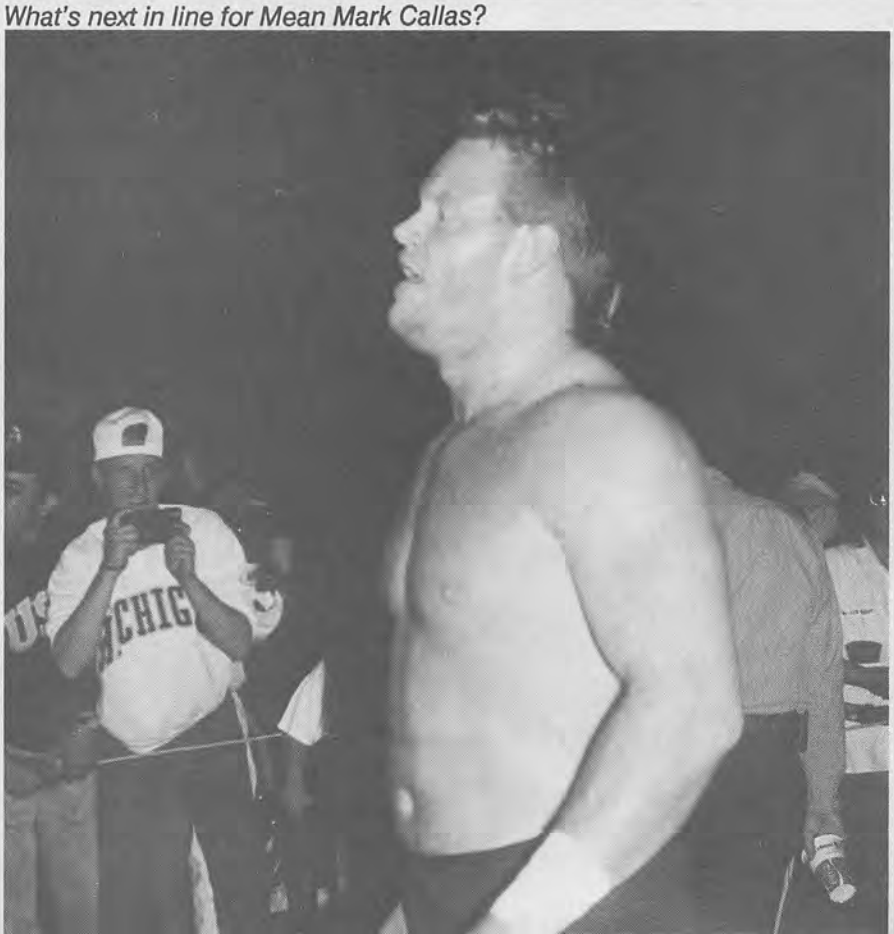
Callas is currently managed by the infamous Paul E. Dangerously.

What's next in line for Mean Mark Callas?



the Skyscrapers, NWA insiders were skeptical of his chances for success. He had been a pro for less than two years and was thought to be too green to be part of a team that was receiving a major push from promotion. Callas surprised his critics. He worked very well with "Dangerous" Danny Spivey. In fact, some experts claimed that Spivey and Callas were a far superior team to the original Skyscrapers. Unfortunately, the new Skyscraper incarnation did not survive very long. Spivey became embroiled in several disagreements with the NWA booking committee and eventually was dismissed from the promotion when he failed to appear for several house shows.

Callas began his NWA singles career under the management of Teddy Long and while he was successful, he did not receive the kind of push or attention that is needed to reach stardom. It is said among NWA insiders that Long was preoccupied with his new tag team combination, Doom. When Doom defeated the Steiner Brothers for the NWA World Tag Team Championship, Terrible Teddy found that they required all of his attention. About that time, Paul E. Dangerously returned to the NWA. Dangerously had left the promotion in 1989, after a bitter dispute with then chief booker, Ric Flair.Now a new booker, Ole Anderson, was in charge and Paul E. saw the chance to move back into the limelight. He contacted Long and arranged a deal for Callas's contract.

Callas actually began using the heart punch before his association with Dangerously began, but Paul E. claims to have helped Mean Mark perfect the move. NWA insiders report that Dangerously set up several training sessions with heart punch expert, Ox Baker. The Ox taught Callas the fine points of delivering the crippling blow, including the proper angle of descent the fist should take to insure the most devastating effect at the point of contact, and the best way of positioning an opponent before the blow is delivered.

There is no doubt that since those training sessions, Callas' skill delivering the move has increased dramatically. Often, his opponents have been carried from the ring on a stretcher. And while it is debatable whether the elbow crunch or the heart punch causes the most damage, there is little doubt that Callas will be a major star in the NWA.

BLOOD FEUD

BOOBY EATON TAKES ON SCOTT STEINER

TEXT & PHOTOS BY DON LAIBLE

It's quickly turning into a no-win situation for Scott Steiner and "Beautiful" Bobby Eaton of the Midnight Express. The punishment they have subjected each other is taking its toll on them. Whether it's in tag team or singles encounters, Eaton and Steiner have been all over one another like bees on honey. Both wrestlers have far too many booking commitments and goals to keep the fire of hatred burning. The high flying, crafty Eaton, a fourteen year mat veteran from Huntsville, Alabama has never shown as much dedication towards embarrassing and annihilating any of the hundreds of past opponents as he has with Steiner. What is so baffling when considering this private war is that neither man can pinpoint what exactly touched off the ill-will between them. But, they both agree there will be a messy, painful conclusion. Brace yourself, this feud is far from settled.

When the members of the Midnight Express meet up with the Bobby Eaton is capable both in and out of the ring.

Bobby slows Scott down with a headlock.

Steiner Brothers, old feelings die hard. Both teams continue to prove that in the National Wrestling Alliance tag team competition is as competitive and rewarding as individual match ups. As both Eaton and Scott Steiner have found out, once you get a feel for wearing the world tag team championship belts and then having them suddenly stripped away, means you have to become meaner, more daring and desperate in order to regain that elite status. Both teams have worn the NWA world belts and both want the belts around their waists, IMMEDIATELY! The United States tag title just isn't satisfying to the Express or to their manager Jim Cornette.

The battle for the belts is a brutal one. Fans in the Northeast were thrilled at the caliber of professionalism presented by both Bobby and Scott. Each wrestler admitted before bell time that this one-on-one match up would be the final chapter in their bitter mat war. Confidence was in no short supply. Cornette was so convinced that his long time protege would win, he agreed to an unprecedented request by Steiner. The mouthy manager abandoned his customary position at ringside as did "Sweet" Stan Lane, Bobby's tag partner. The Express collectively agreed to all of the opposition's special stipulations so there could be no excuses after Eaton's anticipated victory.

When the bell sounded, both men were hesitant to make the first attempt to lock-up in a hold. Each man also had a different strategy. Bobby, who has earned a reputation as a "high flyer", has proven countless times over to be doubly dangerous when leaping off the turnbuckles. To neutralize Eaton's strengths, Scott continuously attempted to draw his foe to the center of the ring, away from the ropes, and to keep him flat on his feet. Steiner's "ace in the hole" would be his power. Known among his fellow pros as a "gym rat", Scott's 22" biceps have squeezed the enthusiasm out of the majority of his challengers, in most cases in less than ten minutes time.

Eaton took the early lead by bouncing, not jumping off the ropes. Bobby was extremely confident as he executed his running shoulder blocks and dropkicks to Scott's chin. All was going well for him but the pride of the Midnight Express still was unable to lure his weakening challenger into a corner to squash him with a flying leg drop. However, the competition's momentum turned completely when Eaton went for an early pin. After slapping a vice-like headlock on Scott Steiner, Bobby valiantly attempted to deliver a crushing "bulldog" maneuver. However, Scott grabbed hold of Eaton's back and threw him forward. The "Beautiful" one landed hard on his backside.

The usually bouncy Bobby was slow in getting up off the mat. The fans behind Scott were giving off a deafening scream in unison calling for the "Frankensteiner", an acrobatic move where he jumps up and wraps his legs tightly around the neck of his opponents from the front and then flips them forward. Before the lethal moves could be applied, a wise Bobby Eaton bailed out of the ring to shake out the cobwebs and regroup his thoughts. A plan quickly came to mind.

Before the match, Scott rested his heavy, gold belt on the athletic commission's table which was set up right next to the ring. His symbol of success proved to be his downfall. Eaton and Steiner expanded their boundaries of battle onto the floor. The two traded bodyslams. Two forearm smashes to the back of Bobby's head put Scott in a commanding position to have his hand raised in victory. Bobby collapsed on the table at ringside. Steiner came at his weary opponent unsuspecting of any foul play in the works.

"Beautiful" Bobby latched a tight grip on the championship belt and smashed it across the forehead of his popular challenger. Scott was stopped dead in his tracks. Referee Mike Atkins had enough. He was pushed past his limits as an official, called for the bell to ring and declared Scott the winner. Eaton was ordered back to his dressing room as Atkins helped steady Steiner. Bobby didn't leave quietly. He screamed his displeasure in Atkins' quick disqualification decision, as he saw it.

"I heard from Bobby two minutes after that travesty of injustice," manager Jim Cornette sputtered. "Bank on it, Atkins' days as an NWA official are limited. No one attempts to show-up any member of the Express and gets away with it. Hey, we've won more titles than the Steiners can count, and they have problems with what comes past three. Yes sir, Steiner, when Bobby gets through with you, you'll wish the NWA never brought you to the big leagues!"

He's only human. Sure, Bobby Eaton showed clear signs of being worn down in the match but he never quit. Bobby, who is often called the silent partner of the Express, does all his talking in the ring with his body. At times many fans have wondered not only how he executes his moves, but how he gets back on his feet again. Practice has made him perfect, far more so than Curt Hennig in the World Wrestling Federation.

Eaton maintains his solid armlock.

Bobby has Scott Steiner down for the count.

Bobby, 6'1" and 230 pounds, has been leading and exciting wrestling audiences for the past fourteen years as a pro. Manager Cornette likes to describe Eaton as more of a magician than a muscleman on the mat in what has evolved into a big man's sport.

You may wish it was over but forget it. The last match between members of the Midnight Express and Steiner Brothers appears months away. Both teams may be sidetracked with challenges made by Doom, The Fabulous Freebirds, The Four Horsemen and The Rock 'N Roll Express but neither duo will rest until one does the other in with such physical destruction that they will become bored and search for new horizons. How gruesome, but how true.

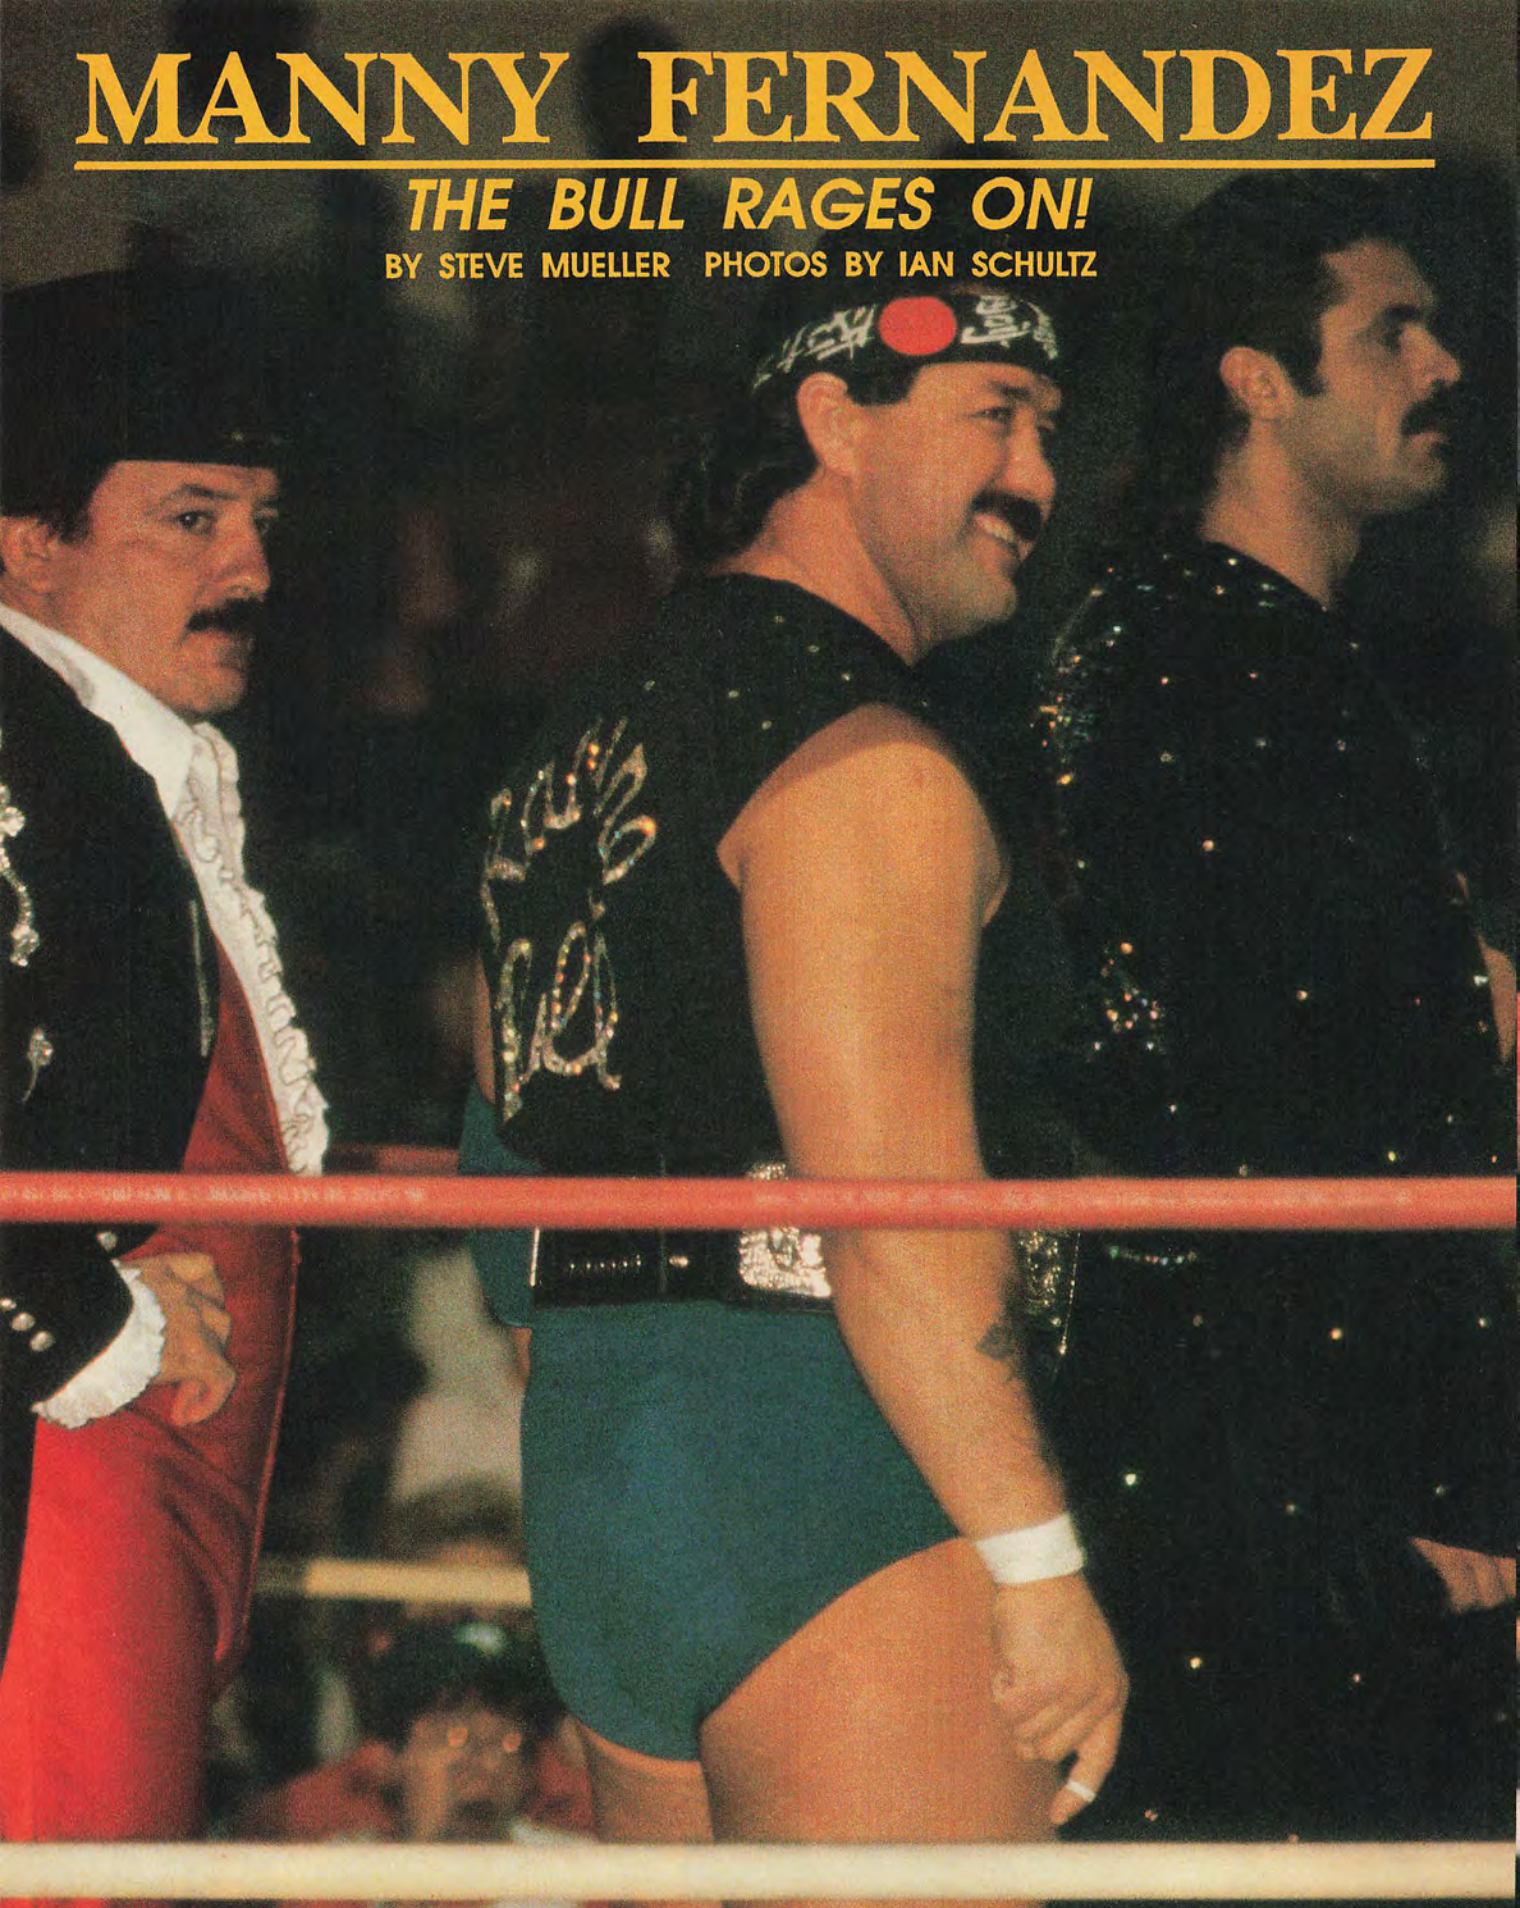
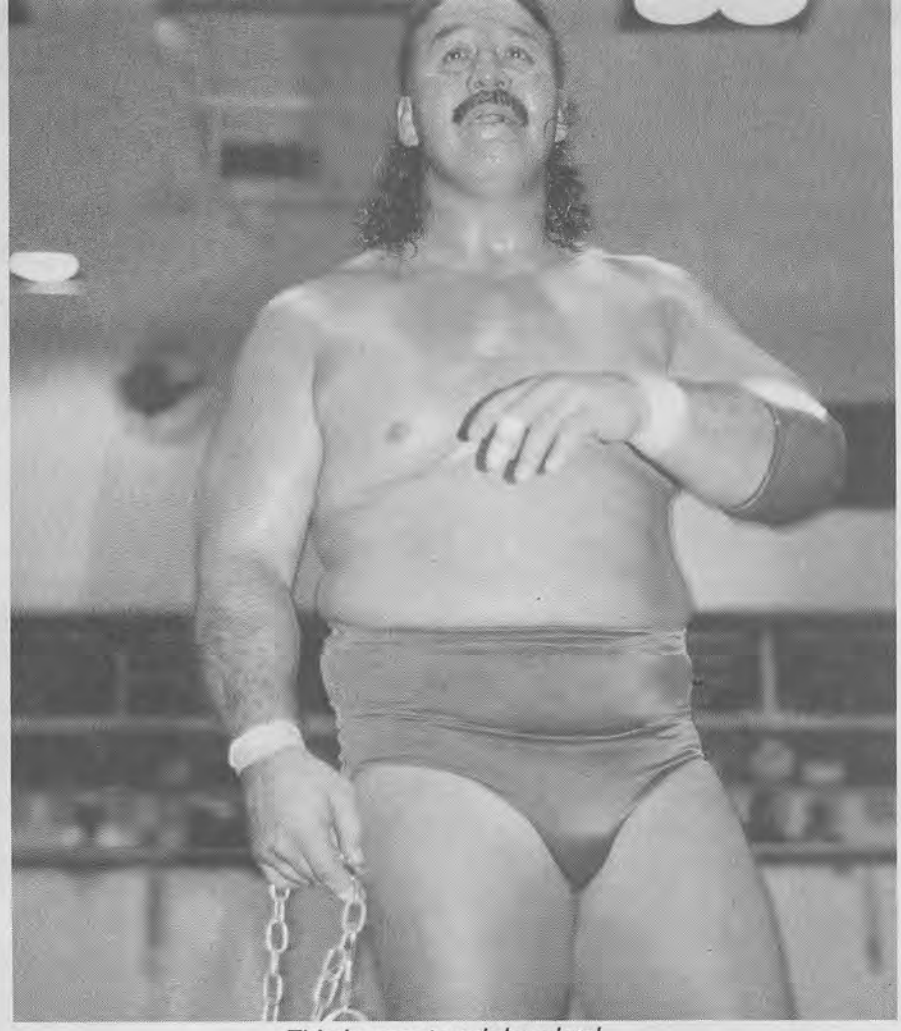
MANNY FERNANDEZ

THE BULL RAGES ON!

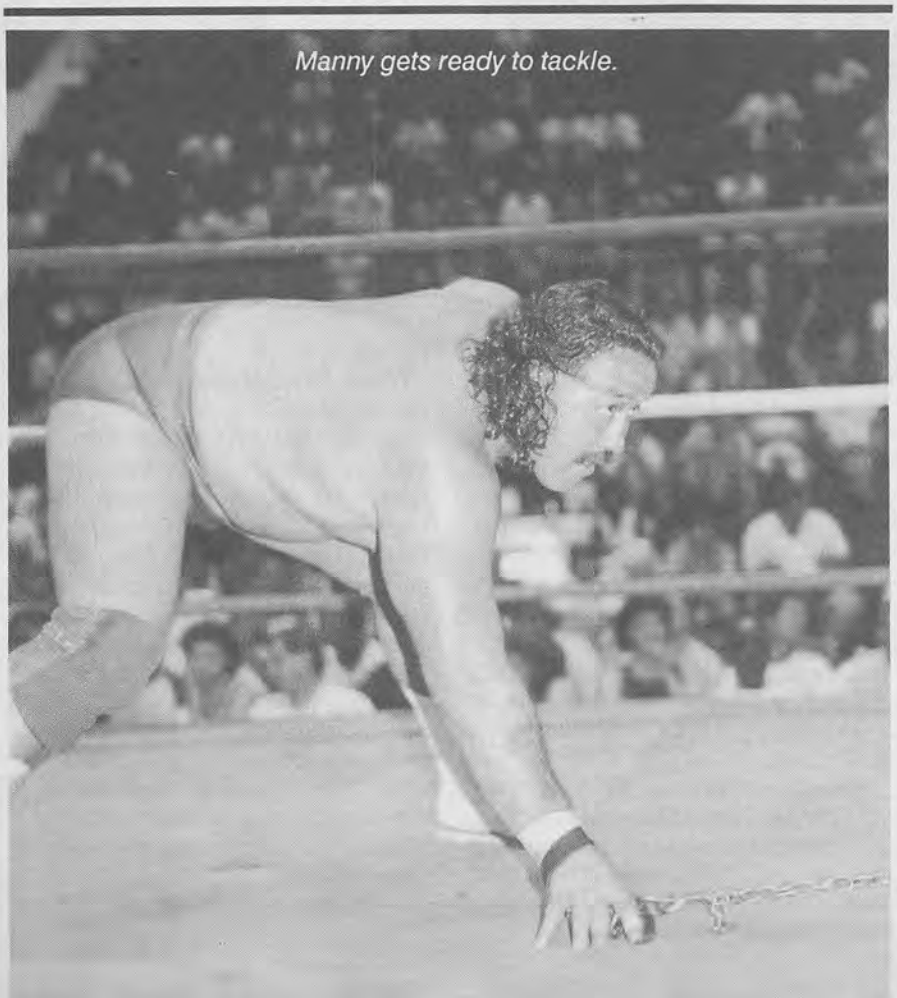
BY STEVE MUELLER PHOTOS BY IAN SCHULTZ



In the early days, Fernandez held the NWA tag belts with none other than Rick Rude.



This is one, tough hombre!



Manny gets ready to tackle.

The scars on Manny Fernandez's forehead resemble a mangled spider web. They are indelible remembrances of the many bloody battles he has waged during his eleven year wrestling career. In fact, some mat historians claim that Fernandez has participated in more bloody ring battles than any other active wrestler. He has lost more blood in the ring than Dracula has drank. Part of the reason for this is that "the Ragin' Bull" thrives in wrestling's most dangerous types of matches. Indian Strap, Bullrope, Cage and Lumberjack matches have been his specialty. These brutal encounters have been an important part of Fernandez's classic ring feuds against such wrestlers as Sergeant Slaughter, Dusty Rhodes, Wahoo McDaniel and Baron Fritz Von Raschke.

The battles have taken a great toll on "the Bull". Many experts believe that if Fernandez had not been involved in so many violent feuds, he would have held the world title of a major promotion for a long time. That is not to say that Fernandez hasn't been a major force in the grappling game. He has been a champion. He has held the NWA World Tag straps with both Dusty Rhodes and Rick Rude as partners, the Central States belt, the Southern Championship, and the National Championship, but a singles world championship title has always eluded him. "It's always been my eventual goal to hold a singles world title," said Fernandez after a recent match in New Jersey. "I'm just coming into my prime. I'm only thirty-five years old. I believe I will accomplish my goal." Many experts agree and say that Fernandez is one of the most versatile wrestlers in the ring today. Rob Russen, President of the International Wrestling Association, calls Fernandez a valuable addition to his growing promotion. "Manny has the ability to wrestle spectacularly against any type of opponent. He is one of those rare competitors who can adjust his ring style to effectively counter any opponent's strengths and offensive maneuvers."

It is particularly significant to wrestling experts that Manny performs equally well as a hero or as a heel. "Fernandez is great," says longtime ring doctor Gary Dunn. "One night recently, I watched Manny battle Nikita Koloff. The Bull had the fans against him that night. The next night in the same city, he battled Nikita s' evil uncle Ivan. The fans welcomed Fernandez with a standing ovation. Who else can do that?"

Russian chain matches don't scare Fernandez.

Manny Fernandez is certainly a raging bull!

Some have attributed Fernandez's frequent heel/hero switches to his volatile personality. His temper has caused numerous problems with tag partners, often turning them into ring opponents. Jimmy "Boogie-Woogie Man" Valiant, Wahoo McDaniel, Nikita Koloff, Dusty Rhodes, and Paul Jones are all former partners of Fernandez who became adversaries. "I'm a perfectionist in the ring," explains Manny. "And I'll do whatever it takes to win. Nobody is looking to sign wrestlers to contracts who don't win. I win. And if someone, even if he is my partner, is stopping me from winning - well, then I got to do something about it."

Since his debut in the IWA, seen nationally on Sports Channel America, Fernandez has added a dynamic new move to his ring repertoire. Right now, he is the only wrestler in the sport able to execute a DDT from atop the second ring rope. When other wrestlers start using this devastating maneuver, historians will record that it was Fernandez who invented and perfected it.

When asked about his future, Fernandez is quite emphatic. "I plan to dominate the IWA for a long time. The IWA has some of the best stars in the sport - Afa the Samoan, Sonny Beach, Ivan Koloff, Chief Jules Strongbow the Ghost Dancer, David Sammartino and Terry Taylor. It has some of the best young talent in the sport - Cactus Jack Manson, Shane Douglas, Derrick Dukes, Larry Cameron and the Terminator. And it also has two of the best managers in the sport - Diamond Dallas Page and the Creator. I predict that soon the IWA will become the third major promotion in America. And I plan to be there at the top when it does."

PHANTOM of the ring

Professional wrestling as we know it has been categorized from everything as a violent sport to a pre determined spectacle. Well, I have the one line that best sums up pro wrestling in a philosophical manner. "Wrestling is the ultimate existential experience that pits good against evil in the theater of the absurd". I don't know who first said that, but boy, he or she sure got things right!...CHRIS VON ERICH, the youngest member of the VON ERICH has made his pro debut in the USWA. He will be feuding there with PERCY PRINGLE and TERRENCE GARVIN. CHRIS looked really decent in his early outings...Hey guys, have you gotten a good look at the valets in the Texas area lately? BILL DUNDEE'S valet, TESSA looks as good as any swimsuit model I've ever seen!..New Japan is looking to promote heavily in the United States and is eyeing Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas as its possible site...SGT SLAUGHTER looks really great in his new role against NIKOLAI VOLKOFF. I have flashbacks of the SARGE whipping BOB BACKLUND with a riding crop. Remember that one?!..KERRY VON ERICH hasn't exactly been drawing record crowds since he debuted with the WWF, but look for him to get a big push in his new role as THE TEXAS TORNADO...However, judging from KERRY'S past record, many insiders don't expect him to stay around that long...HULK HOGAN and his wife LINDA had their second baby in August. His name is NICHOLAS ALLEN BOLLEA and he weighed in at 8 pounds, 2 ounces. Congrats to the new proud papa!..HOGAN is currently filming an action-adventure movie where he plays a Rambo-type character. It seems as though the HULKSTER is looking to spend more time on movie sets and less time wrestling rings...The NWA has begun featuring women on their cards again. They recently hosted title defenses by LPWA champ, SUSAN SEXTON taking on challenger BAMBI. Let's hope this trend continues...KEN PATERA is the new champ of the UWA. PATERA recently defended his laurels against against the likes of KAMALA and CACTUS JACK...The original SHEIK recently battled ABDULLAH THE BUTCHER in their classic bloodfest in Toledo for the fourth year in a row...The WWC hosted their anniversary show in Puerto Rico with great matches like CARLITOS COLON and TNT wrestling to a draw, SCOTT HALL beating THE BOTSWANA BEAST and INVADER #1 winning the Carribean title in a boxing match against LEO BURKE. THE INVADER (JOSE GONZALES) had HECTOR CAMACHO and ROBOCOP in his corner. How's that for a show of strength? THE SUPER MEDICOS defeated THE ROUGEAUS (yes, they have been spotted in Puerto Rico!) and MONSTER RIPPER defeated CANDI DIVINE for the Ladies title...NWA prelim wrestler, THE ITALIAN STALLION, won a spaghetti eating championship in Virginia. He ate an entire plate of spaghetti in 47 seconds and set a new world record. Look for his name in the Guinness Book of World Records...TULLY BLANCHARD says he is dedicating his life to Christianity and makes regular guest appearances at churches in the South. BLANCHARD is also still suffering from a torn achilles tendon, so a return looks dim...A quick plug - If you want to get a wrestler to appear at your next function, contact Gold Entertainment at 201-354-4005 for information...Since JESSE VENTURA'S and RODDY PIPER'S prime-time show has been relegated to mid-season status, don't look for it to appear in your local TV listings yet...You all probably know the details of BRUTUS BEEFCAKE'S tragic accident by now, but for those of you who don't, BEEFCAKE suffered numerous head and facial injuries when he was para-sailing in Tampa, Florida. 81/2 hours of surgery were required and BEEFCAKE is now on the road to recovery. WRESTLING EYE wishes him a speedy recovery...TONY ATLAS has made quite a splash in the WWF, but DUSTIN RHODES hasn't come in with a bang. ANDRE & BABA

EAST JOINS WEST

BY BILL SANDERS

Go on, admit it. Andre may not be the most popular wrestler in the U.S., nor is he the greatest technical wrestler of our time, but he is a legend. The Andre the Giant biography reads like any other "legend" story, with Andre's childhood coming to the forefront. He was raised in poverty like conditions in the French Alps. His family suffered the brutal effects of poor living conditions, and never had enough money or food. Andre was also ridiculed because of his abnormal size, but did find much success in athletics, namely rugby, the European version of football. But alas, rugby took a back seat to wrestling. A sharp promoter discovered Andre and made him an overnight sensation. Andre moved to the U.S. and became an instant success. Whenever he wrestled, he sent his earnings back to his homeland to help out his unfortunate family. Andre then traveled down the path that most wrestling fans are familiar with. He became the single biggest attraction in the sport's history and was rated as highly as such greats like Gorgeous George and Haystacks Calhoun. The age of the giant was here, and Andre captured the hearts and support of the fans during the late seventies and mid eighties. He also drew a considerable amount of attention in Japan, where he teamed and wrestled with a man that many have called Andre's Japanese counterpart, The Giant Baba.

Most recently the two giants have reunited. It was announced a press conference held in Japan that Andre would team with the legendary Giant Baba in a reunion match against W.W.F. tag team champions, Demolition. The two teamed during the now historic Wrestling Summit last April. For the first time the Japanese promotions of the All Japan, New Japan groups and the W.W.F. combined to promote the night of wrestling that hosted many matches including Hogan vs. Hansen, Bret Hart vs. Tiger Mask, Hennig and Martel vs. Tsuruta and Haku, but perhaps the most exciting match saw Demolition taking on the two giants. All Japan was so anxious for the four men to meet for the tag team title that they flew Giant Baba from Tokyo to Phoenix, Arizona in March of 1990 to encourage Andre to once again be his partner. Both Andre and Baba hadn't combined their talents in tag action for nearly a decade prior to this engagement. Before Andre left dressing room that evening to meet the Big Bossman, both giants shook hands as a very lucrative deal for both parties had been struck. Both members of the team were extremely well versed in their craft and they even knew each other's moves as they had been opponents in the past. They banked on the theory that if enough pressure was put on Demolition, there would be no way for the face-painted roughnecks to deny the challenge.

Once the WWF tag match was officially announced, it had the same effect on Japanese fans as the World Series and Super Bowl does in America. No doubt Demolition facing Andre and Baba was a leading factor in attracting an announced crowd in excess of 53,000 in the Dome and generating more than two million dollars at the box office. Ax and Smash, all decked out in their black leather wardrobes, performed as ruggedly as they looked. But, when the two giant athletes put their talents together, all the punching, stomping and slamming that Demolition had done to opponents in the past went out the window. No one ever had their way with either Andre or Baba in a wrestling ring and Demolition was no exception.

No, Demolition quickly found out that they weren't dealing with ordinary men. Andre the Giant was visibly pumped up for the ensuing battle. In weeks leading up to the tag showdown in Japan, there were obvious signs that Andre wasn't content with the Bobby Heenan camp and he wanted more from his career. Tension thickened between Andre and Heenan. First, Heenan placed the blame on Andre the Giant for his "Colossal Connection" losing the WWF tag belts to Demolition at WrestleMania 6 in Toronto, Canada on April 1, 1990. Revenge was all that occupied Andre's mind, a chance to regain the championship with a partner who would appreciate his efforts. From that disappointing outing in Toronto until the Summit took place, Andre occupied himself with one thought, winning. He was just waiting for his chance to prove Bobby Heenan wrong. And when it was show time, Andre and Giant Baba waited some more. Their challenge with Ax and Smash was slated eleventh on a twelve match all-star studded extravaganza. Once all four participants were in the same ring, the fans on hand received exactly what they had anticipated. The Giants controlled the match's tempo from the opening bell. As hard as Demolition tried to gain the advantage, Andre and Baba continually shook off any assault that was mounted. As far as stamina was concerned, the Giants were at an obvious disadvantage. Baba stated before the title clash that his team's best shot for a victory was to take the lead and capitalize on their foe's misfortunes early on. The longer the match progressed, the more certain the fans were that Andre and Baba would play into the hands of the WWF champs. An early win was not only ordered but served up by Andre the Giant and Giant Baba. After whipping Smash across the length of the ring, the Frenchman delivered his size eighteen boot to Smash's face as he came bouncing off the ropes. And Smash stayed flat on his back for good when Andre seized the opportunity by following up with a tremendous elbow smash. The fans went berserk with joy. Andre pinned Smash in 6:39 of the contest. Nippon TV in Japan broadcast the match two days later and the network's ratings went through the roof.

"Whoever thought that it was going to be Andre's last match couldn't have considered the whole picture. It was no secret that he was depressed about losing the title with Haku in Toronto," Bret Hart stated. "But man, all you had to do was watch in Japan to see he still had the same spark." When the rest of the WWF crew departed from the Orient on April 14, Andre stayed behind to train with Baba and to work himself back into better, less painful ring condition. For some still unexplained technicality, the WWF tag belts didn't exchange owners in the Egg Dome and Andre and Baba are certainly looking into why. The victory on April 13, 1990 for Andre the Giant and Giant Baba turned out to be the injection of youth of which both were in search of. Negotiations are ongoing to bring the twosome to the States for a rematch with Ax and Smash. This time around you can count on an ironclad provision for the belts to be up for grabs. No one ever proclaimed they would set the wrestling world on fire but Andre and Baba are contributing to it's overall continuing success around the globe. What a thrill to have two wrestling legends working together again.

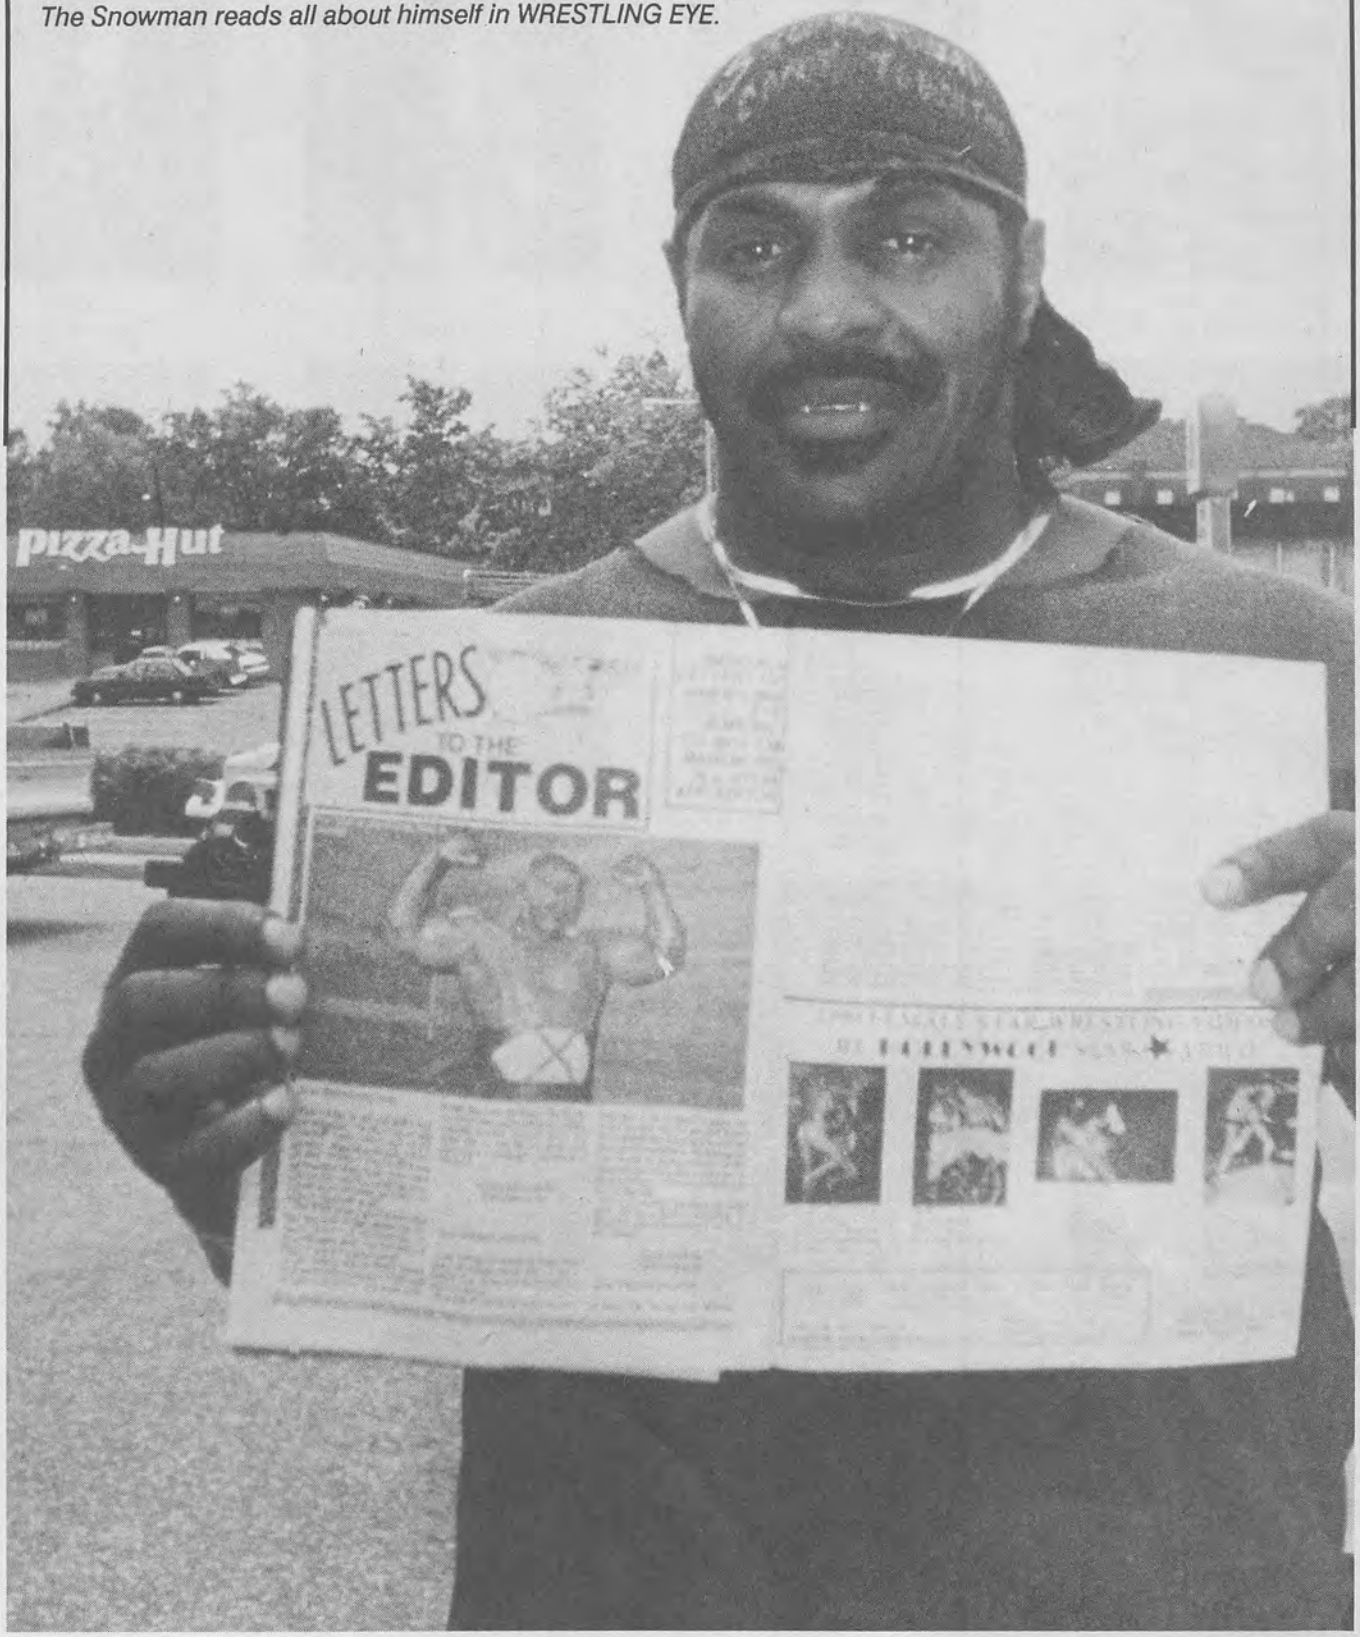
MEET THE SNOWMAN

WRESTLING'S GENTLE GIANT



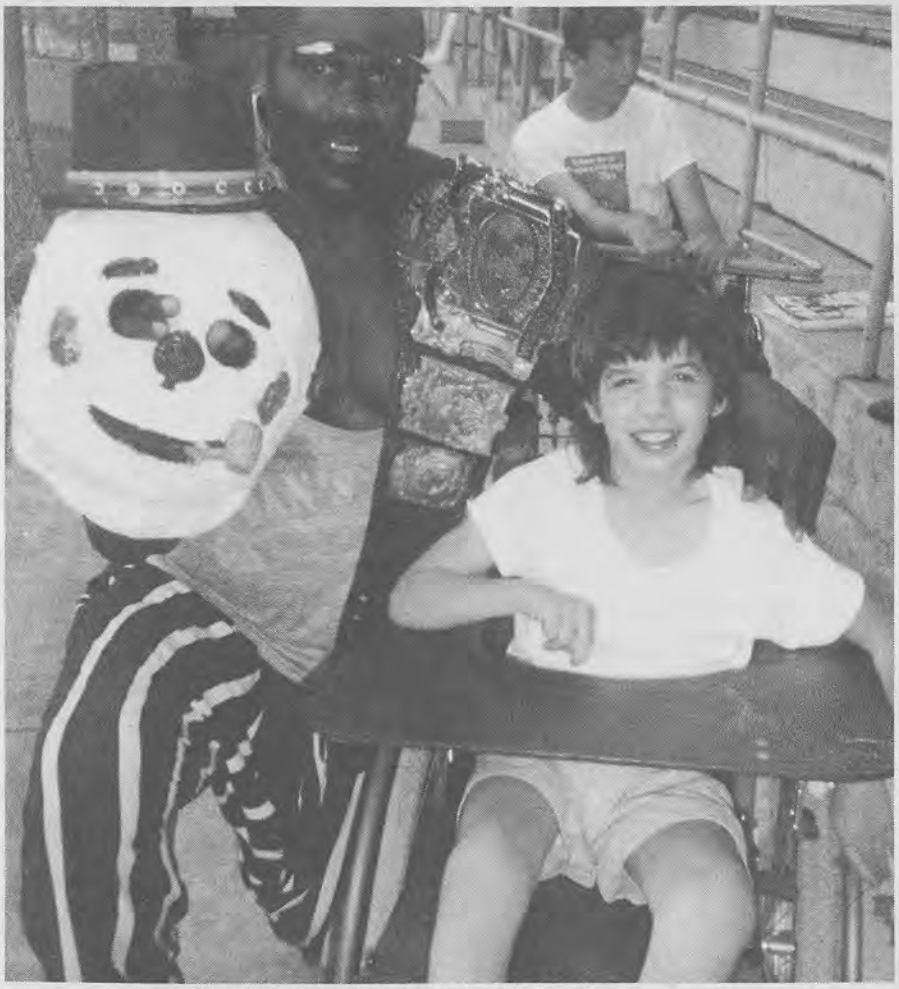
The Snowman reads all about himself in WRESTLING EYE.

On any given night a wrestler can lose his title. This is a simple fact of life even the greatest athlete must face. That loss happened to a hometown hero that has spent almost two decades perfecting his ring technique and building up a fan following so strong that the combination of the two has guaranteed his assured success over many of wrestling's most legendary figures. Oddly enough this loss is followed by several reports that stated Jerry Lawler was losing his fans in the Memphis area. Jerry was also warned by other wrestlers that he needed to give the fans more consideration. That advice fell on deaf ears.

Many wrestlers have come to Memphis since Jerry Lawler won the World Unified title to show interest in holding the title themselves. This has resulted in many intense matches, much to the delight of Memphis wrestling fans. The Snowman, a local wrestler, challenged Jerry Lawler for the belt and was denied an immediate title shot. This made the fans curious because their champion had been allowing everyone else a title shot until that day. The promotion seemed to back Lawler on his decision. The fans finally demanded that The Snowman be allowed to compete for the title. They also demanded he should be allowed his choice of referee, no matter the cost. Remember, these are the same fair fans who demanded that Jerry Lawler have his choice of referee in his match for the title two years ago. The Snowman's final choice was boxing great Leon Sphinks for referee in his title match against Lawler. That night as Memphis wrestling fans watched and waited, The Snowman defeated their long time hero.

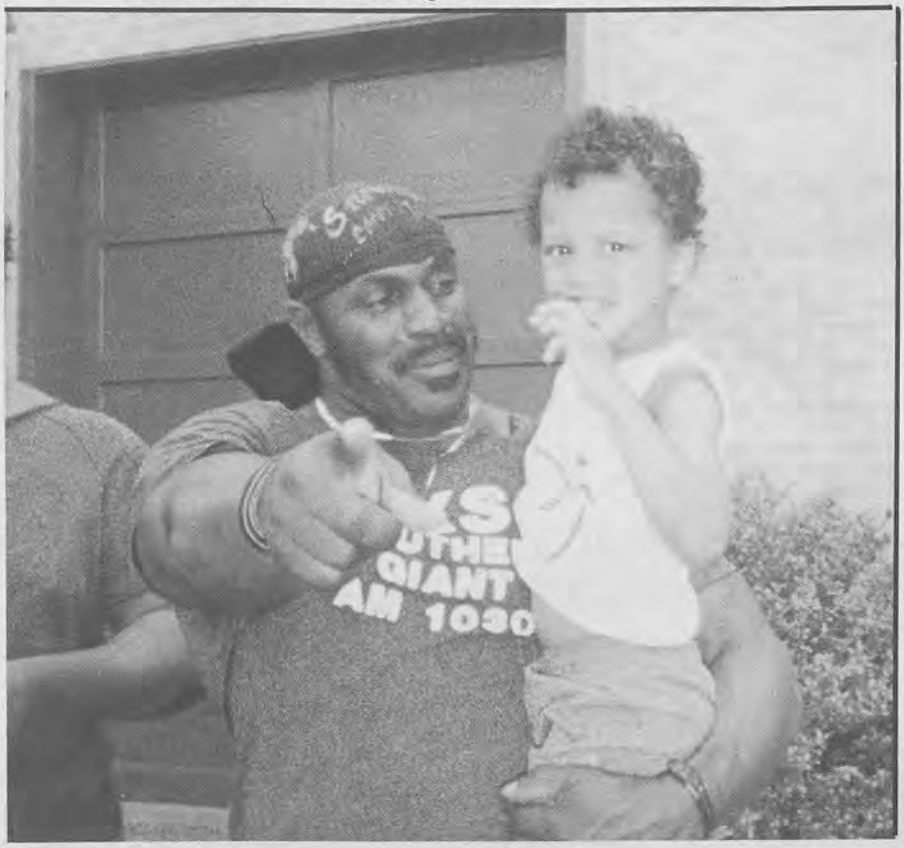
The Memphis fans now follow their new champion in large crowds. So many fans surround The Snowman, his two advisors and his personal bodyguard form the moment he emerges to sign autographs and takes pictures that it is usually difficult to see how he can make his way to the area designated by the promotion for the wrestler's use. Many young children and older fans approach to give hugs and encouragement to the new champion.

After several unsuccessful attempts, the former champion, Jerry Lawler has little choice but to watch his foe from a distance and pray for the day he will once again, if ever,



This big man has an even bigger heart.

The Snowman tries to be a good role model for children.



regain his precious title. In the meantime Lawler keeps busy with tag team action.

Currently, the new World Unified Champion, The Snowman, has been very successful defending his title against all challengers. He also makes time in his busy schedule to do charity work on a weekly basis. The Snowman makes appearances at centers for the handicapped, underprivileged and seriously ill children in the Memphis area. He stresses the importance of a good education, abstinence from drugs and faith in God. The wrestling world can use more sympathetic and hard working champions like The Snowman.

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

You guys have the best magazine I have ever seen. It is the only one that covers the great wrestlers from different promotions, not just the WWF and NWA. You all even cover women's wrestling; even though I don't like it, it's nice to see that someone covers the ladies because there are fans who like them.

I would like to see more coverage of the Japanese wrestling scene. There are wrestlers like Masa Saito, Riki Chosu, The Great Kabuki and especially The Great Muta, whose career I still follow.

Also, how about some more pin ups and stories on The Great Muta and The Rock 'n Roll Express. Meanwhile, keep up the good work on the best magazine in the world!

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

Many independent wrestling promotions come and go, but I recently witnessed one of the best pro wrestling cards ever! It was under the SGM Promotions banner-Independent Wrestling Alliance. It took place in Leesport, Pa and the main event was nothing short of spectacular! The champ, "Maniac" Jimmy Deo went up against Diesel Don. This man is one of the largest and roughest pro wrestlers to ever step in the ring. The match lasted about 22 minutes with the "Maniac" coming out the victor, even though he was a bloody mess.

Other exciting matches were D.C. "Mad Dog" Drake vs. "Bulldog" Brian Bowser, "Dynamite" Dennis Diamond, Johnny Wildside, Johnny Rebel, Vladimir Markov and a special guest appearance by Cactus Jack. I'd like to tell all the readers that if they can, catch a show by SGM promotions. They're awesome!!!

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

I really like your magazine. I especially like the PHANTOM OF THE RING segment. I think the Steiners are the best tag team in the NWA. I agree with others when they say the NWA needs to be cleaned up, and I feel that Lex Luger, Sting, Rick and Scott Steiner are the four that could do it!

The Horsemen need to be wiped out, and any of the four I mentioned earlier could do it. They could take them out one at a time or they could have a colossal eight man tag team match-up. I think it's only a matter of time before the NWA abolishes the Horsemen for good!

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

I love the NWA! It's the greatest federation today! I was so happy to see Sting get the World title. He deserves it after all he's been through these past few months at the hands of the Horsemen. Flair was a great champion but it's time for new blood in the NWA and Sting is the future of wrestling. It's also time for The Four Horsemen to gallop off into the sunset. Flair and the Andersons were the wrestlers of the 80s but Luger and Sting and men like them are the wrestlers of the 90s and it's time that everyone realizes it. Sting is the greatest wrestler of today and tomorrow. Flair said "to be the man, you've got to beat the man." Sting has done just that, so he is THE man!!

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

We have been waiting for some time for the greatest tag team in the AWA to debut in the NWA - The Destruction Crew.

We dream, worship and fantasize about these two gorgeous hunks taking on the so-called tag team talent. We know they will destroy reputations and probably destroy those who stand in their way - much as they did to Patera, Rheingans etc. in the AWA. Bloom and Enos, we love you!

Dear WRESTLING EYE,

I won't even begin to talk about the Ultimate Warrior because what I have to say is quite offensive. However, I must settle certain arguments in the professional wrestling world once and for all.

As far as I'm concerned, the World Wrestling Federation is the highest association for the wrestling arts there is. How can anyone be stupid enough to even compare the Federation to the AWA or NWA? Give me a break! The wrestlers in the WWF can take on any of the sorry athletes in the other organizations. I am sick and tired of looking in the magazines and seeing the pathetic little NWAers ranked above some wrestlers in the WWF. Hey, the WWF has always been on top and it will continue to stay that way. HULKAMANIA IS ALIVE! I hate hearing those little wicked remarks about Hulkamania being dead. Hulk's taken losses before. He's been bruised a bit. But Hulkamania never died. And even if the era of Hulkamania is over, let's remember Hogan with respect and honor. He was a hero of the 80s...our champ! He encouraged us and in return we gave him our hearts. And when he lost to the Warrior he didn't take a chair and beat someone's brains out. He presented the belt to the Warrior and walked out like a real champ should. Sure, when Hulk wins a match, everyone cheers for Hulkamania. Then he loses one and everyone turns their backs on him. Even the Warrior, after he became champion looked at Hogan and saw a legend leaving. Let's accept the Warrior as the NEW champ and remember Hogan as a GREAT Champ!

INTRODUCING

FOR THE BEST IN

BY RANDY POWELL

Women's wrestling continues to grow in popularity and promoters and fans alike are very aware of who the top wrestlers are. In fact, there are some all girl promotions that are attracting large audiences and the WPW is one of them.

Mat veteran Debbie Combs formed the new association. She felt that the pros offered no real competition. Ms. Combs wanted to put glamour and real action back in the ring and from the looks of things, she's certainly succeeded. Presently wrestling for the WPW are such stars as Candi Divine, Olympia, Sue Green, Awesome Ondy, Peggy Lee Leather, Malia Hosaka, Denise Storm, Velvet McIntyre, Lisa Starr, Penny Mitchell, Sandi Partlow, Penelope Paradise, Baby Face Nellie and Jacki Moore. The wrestling action is top notch and each match is filled with non-stop thrills.

If you want to drop the WPW a line or get a copy of their great videos call 1-800-252-1994 or write to WPW, P.O. Box 22868, Nashville, Tn 37202.
